

when I get back. Gee but I get tired of saying "when I get back". No danger of my hiking ever "killing" you.
But don't try any of Lauretta's tricks. She carries it too far — nothing is gained by breaking one's arch.
Also, hiking is not worth while unless you really do like it. I do hope you will learn to swim. Did you get the wings O.K.? How was the lake? The last time I was in was at Shelbourn.
My folks would not treat you very nice unless they liked you pretty well, and I am mighty glad they do, but not a bit surprised.
