#2 - Mr. Curtis W. McGraw.

One other question I would like to ask would be on the binding and illustration that you are using on the outside. While I realize that I have nothing to do with the color of the cover, I believe that the color and the illustration has a lot to do with making the book more attractive, and I would appreciate seeing what you have in mind, if convenient for you.

Mrs. Allen and I are planning on getting on the galleys and exhausting them by very careful and painstaking attention as soon as they arrive. That is Detail No. 1 on our time budget. I know, of course, that we will have to hold the gallays until we have all the illustrations and diagrams so that the manuscript coincides. I assure you that you can count on our co-operation one hundred per cent.

You will find that Miss Giles has the information on the Braley poems.

We will not let any grass grow under out feet concerning the possibility of moving along in rapid order.

With every good wish, I am

Sincerely yours,
