you manage" asked another, "Well" he said "I get in my boat and row out in the middle of the lake, than I whittle the terbacco upin little hunks, and throw them in the water, the fish eat them, and when they come up to spit I hit them in the head."

87

Jim – We had a quarrel last night and my wife become historical.

Jim – Hysterical, you mean, don't you?

Jim – Naw, historical; I said, She began bringing up my past.

88

Flanagan – Faith an' plwat makes yer nose sore this morning.

Hooligan – Shure an' its the reflection av me soul shinin thru.

Flan – Reflection av yer soul, ye say? How so.

Hool – Glowin' wit pleasure, it's Flan, at me ability to tend to me own business.

89

The argument had reached the bitter stage, in fact the heavy-set woman had about reached her limit when she exploded: Oh, I wish all men were on one side of the ocean and we on the other side. "Oh yeah" retorted her meek little husband, "and I bet you'd be the first to try to swim across.

90

Mrs. Boggs – I always feel a lot better after having a good cry.

Mrs Wiggs – So do I. It sorta gets things outa your system.

Mrs Boggs – Well, its not so much what it gets out of my system as out of my husband.

91

Her father – And what are your prospects for promotion.

" lover – Most excellent, sir. There's nobody in the firm below me.

92

Judge – Guilty or not guilty, Mr Flaherty.

Mr Flaherty – Shure now an' plwat are ye holdin' a judge's job but to find out.

93

He (jealous) You're dancing with me tonight and I suppose tomorrow you'll have a date with some other guy.

She – Yes, with a foot doctor.

94

Pat (at fruit market) Am would ye heft one and dese big oranges Mike.

Mike – Shure an' it wan't take many av them to make a dozen Pat.