Dear Dr. Allen:

I'm writing this in a slightly different mood than my former letters. It seems that here on the island we have a superior basketball player that I'd like to see on a K.U. team in the future. So I'll go into some detail to tell you of him.

He is about 6' 1" tall and weighs some 180 lbs. He has long arms and is in every form, a scrapper. As you can readily understand, we have men on the teams around here that were formerly college stars and some of them former professionals. Yet this boy (20 yrs old) is far superior to any of them and in my opinion is in a class with Ray Evans. He is the same type chap as Ray, and reminds me a lot of him. However he isn't as modest, yet has a very likeable personality and makes friends easily.

He is the best basketball player that I've seen in years without a
