and so I shall never mention my love for you again.

It may be better to "love some one you can't have, than to have someone you can't love"; but that isn't right either way.

Yes, I remember the little incidents you spoke of. The violets down below the pasture and the beiled flowers at the "Big Hills". And I remember the slippers, too. I have the picture of you on the porch rail with the kitten and you look so big and so close, just as if I could just open my arms and hold you close.
