all God and all the world to witnes, I have done nothing as a private man bannished or a lewd man, nor as a publique person prouoked or my calling. I protest before God that as a man careful of my Ma:ties safety I have been careful and tuious, but yet Ballard gabroffe me his secrets I protest I would have stay'd them, but yet his word prattised to the by me, why did he not plead it then for his life?

L: of Scots: Heard again he stylled (and not) that he would not make a shipwrack of his soul in conspiring against his good sister, and that those that M. Secretaries had put as spyes upon him, were spyes for him against them, and had likewise told him things of them.

L: Attur: The Queenes Attorney proued that the Queene of Scotts was privie to the Conspiracie, and gaue instructions to her Secretaries to write, by her Secretaries confessed unconstrayned or imprisoned, by their oaths, by their originalls some in typeers and some translated into English by their direction. Jaques Nau & Gilbert Curle

L: Solliciter: The Sollicitor proueth both the points of the statute according to the points of the Commission.

First

First that she was privie to the Conspiracie, That she received Babingtons lies wherein the Conspiracie was contayned to kill the Queene, wch yaue answere to it, exposed by her Secretaries, who besides their oaths and voluntarie confessions did put downe anonimye to their memorie the minutes and points of Babingtons lies to the Queene and her answere to Babington, wherein officiallie they remember the points of the Conspiracie stirular by Babington before he had acquainted and at large when he thought to have acquainted it. Corollie he proued that she forbeth did compasse and conspire the Queenes death, For besides the approuinge of Babingtons plott, she adopts in her lies of her owne for the execution of the designem. The Secretaries at the viewe of her lies did write these ser le expresse commaundiment de la Roigne ma matresse: Nau: Curle: Then bringe asked

L: of Scotts: whether it were their hands: The Queene confessed she knew it to be their hands, and that Curle was an honest man but she would not be iudged by him, and that Nau was the Kings Secretarie of Scotlande