portion of their good will. I have also to yo^u^ tomor resolution in that their designments doe not take hold (as may happen whether yo^u^ will or not pursue my transport and the portion of the rest of the enterprise; But if the mischeff should fall out, that yo^u^ might not rend by me, being put into the Tower of London, or in any other strength w^th^ greate guard, yet notw^th^standing have not for Godd sake to proceede in the rest of the enterprise; for I shall at any time dye most contented understanding of yor delivie out of servitude, wherein yo^u^ are holden as slaves; I shall assaie at the same time that the works shalbee in hand, in this ag^t^ to make the Catholiq nob in Scotland arise and to put my selfe into their hands, to the effect, that from hence our enemies good may not p^r^vaile of any succour. I would also that some skirmige in Ireland were laboured for, and to bee begun some weile before that any temige bee done here, to the end the Allarum might bee given them on the flat contrarie side that the blood remote remote from: yor reasons me think to have some generall head or Ediffe, are very ignorant, and therefore were it good to send obstinable the Earle of Arundell, or some of his brethren likewise to stoke upon the young Earle of Northumberland if he bee at libertie from over the Sea. The Earle of Westmorland may bee had whose house and name may doe much in the North p^t^, as also the Lord Stadyth of good abilities in some skirbs heere abouts, both the one and the other may bee brought hence secretlie, amongst wth some of the principall banisht may return if the enterprise bee once resolute; The said Lord Stadyth is now in Spaine, and may treate there of all wth by his brother Charles yo^u^ will committ unto him in this affaire; Beware that none of yor Messengers, whom yo^u^ send forth of the Realme, carrie any flatterie upon themselves, but make their dispatches either before or after them by some other.

Take heede of spyes and false brethren that are amongst yo^u^, especially of some Priests alreadie practised by our enemies for yor distruction; and in any wise never
