waylinge and gnashinge of teeth. Hereafter is noe tyme of retentiuion or place of satisfaction, here life is gotten, here life is lost, and therefore Madam this day yea this houre, if yu will heare Gods voyce harden not ye heart, the hand of death is over ye head, the axe is put to the roote of the tree, the throne of the greatest Judge of heaven is layd open, and be is the booke wherein are written all the workes of ye life; What wanteth now but the sentence of the eternall Judgmt to bee given agst yu? omitt noe tyme good Madam, let not the night of darkenes hinder ye sinle a sleepe, but take the light of the sun while yet the day endureth, if yet yu lay hold on Christ wth the hand of true faith, if yet yu applie yis merits to the life of ye sinle, if yet yu forsake ye selfe and fly to his throne of grace, there is noe doubt that the tyme is yet amis neitt too late, but that our Lord Jesus Christ shalbee ye life, and ye death shalbee ye advantage, and nothinge else but an entrance into eternall glorie, and this ye mortalitie shall in a moment moment put on immortalitie. Madam even now Madam doth God open to yu a doore into a heavenlie kingdome, in comparison whereof all earthlie principalitie is darkenes, and the shaddowe of death. Shut not up therefore this passage by the hardninge of ye hart, and grieve not the good spirit of God wth may shake ye sinle to a day of redemption.

3 Finallie and last of all I pray ye grave to consider and waige wth ye selfe the tyme and estate to come, either to rise in the day of the Lord to the resurrection of life and to heare that joyfull singe Come yee blessed of my Father or eternall damnation to depart wth sorrowe and griefe from before the irefull face of the Judge that shall say Goe yee cursed into everlastinge fyre. One of these Lady must bee ye lot, either to stand on gods right hand as a sheepe of his pasture, or on his left hand as a goate ppanded for longtame, either to bee gathered as weeds into his barne, or to bee cast out as trashe into unquenchable fyre. Blessed
