tarried awaie and wasted, as all things else were that had any blood either wasted or burned, and the Langmen dopted wth mondy for their paymes, not lavoinge ~~and~~ things that belonged unto her, either of apparell or any thinge else. And so the dead body and the head was tarried by the Scottis and lyt mon into the greate Chamber lyinge there readie for the Chirurgions to imbalme her

The manner of the Scottish Queenis funeralls solemnized the first day of August Anno 1587 at Peterborough

Upon the first day of August beinge Wednesday were the funeralls appointed to bee solemnized for the Scottish Queene in the Cathedrall Church of Peterborough, and accordingly there were sent thither to make preparation for the dyet Mr Darnell and Mr Cox, for the funerall officers Mr Fortescue M^r of the greate Wardrobe. The Earrolds came downe three or fowr daies before and appointed appointed wth the 23^pp and the Deane of the place for the body to be interred, wch was devised over a^gst the lyinge of Queene Katherine Dowager on the right hand of the Quire to the tombe of their last Abbot and first 23^pp of that Church. There was a rich cleare drettes above the first stoop of the Quire neere to the place of the buriall, and the weeld Quire and Church were hanged w^th black. Upon Sundday at night the 30th of July the body was brought by torchlight from Fodringham Castle, where it had layen since the tyme of the execution by Garter Kinge at armes and other Earrolds wth some number of Earls in a Chariot made of purpose covered wth black velvett and adorned wth her ensignes accordingly between one and two of the clock in the morninge, where attended for it before the Church the 23^pp of Peterborough and the Deane of the Cathedrall Church, the M^r of the Wardrobe Clarentius Kinge at armes, and divers others aswell of her Ma servants as other gentlemen. There came wth the body six of the Scottish traynes as Melvin the Master of her Howsehold the Physitian