not condemne a man for treason/.

Lo: Cecill/ My Lord Cobham was asked whether & whom hee heard from you? And hee answered ay, day/.

Raw: Remish added more I now bidd you speake those last words/.

Here the Attorney offered to interrupt him/.

Lo: Cecill/ It is his last discourse you me him leave mr. Attorney/.

Raw: I am accused concerning Arbella, and concerning money out of Spaine, my Lord Chiefe Justice saith a man may bee condemned with one witnesse, yea without one witnesse at all/ Cobham is a man in of many things (Conscientia mille testes) my Lords poore soule was but this yeare, let him bee brought being alive, and in the house, let him acquaint one of these things and I will confesse the whole judgement and sentence the Queene more to/.

Lo: Cecill/ Here hath been a tayre of the Lady Arbella Steward a poore Kinswoman of the Queen, let bee not scandalize the sentence by confusion of speech, shee is as innocent of these things as I or any man here, onely shee promised a ring from Cobham to spare her while shee laughed at, and put it to the Queene so farr was shee from discontent, that shee laughed him to scorne, but you see how farr the Count Aremberge did conspire/.

Here the Lord Admyrall coming by in a standing with the Lady spake to the ladie/.

The Lady doth here protest upon her salvation shee was ignorant in ought of these things, and shee willes mee to tell the ladie/. Lo: Admyrall/

The Lord Cobham writ to the Lady Arbella to know if shee might come to speake with her and gave her to understand that there were some about the Queene that labored to disgrace her shee doubted it was a trick, but Brooke saith his brother made him to procure Arbella to write bee to ye Queene of Spaine, but saith hee now did it/. Lo: cecill/

The Lord Cobham hath accused mee, and you see in what manner hee hath performed it, were it not for his Accusation all this were nothing, let him bee asked if the two Lawrency brought him from Aremberge let mee speake for my life it can bee no hurt for him to bee brought, hee dared not accuse mee if you wouldst mee not this, I am throughly vexed/ Cameron was not denyed to have his Answere face to face/. Raw:
