would to have a pension promised him of 1,500 li. a yeare for which he promised noe Man should bee ayd unto Spaine, the Lord Cham= berlaine, or find yet but hee would give knowledge thereof beforehand, Hee told mee the States had audience with the King /

Attor: Yet not this a Spanish heart in an English body hee hath beene the originall cause of all my Injurie, for I mean had ever dealing with Arembergue but by his In= stigation, hee hath beene the cause of all my disentertainment, Hee hee advised mee not to bee entertaine with Yearehere ad Essex mean, and that the King would better allowe of a constant Denyall than to arrye and /. O Dammable Atheist, hee hath learned some Texte of Scripture to serve his owne purpose, but falsly alledgeth them, hee dissuaded him not to bee bound by the Counsell of Yearehere ad Essex mean, hee dyed the child of God, and God honored him at his death, and then must by to shewe the, malice, At Eunus et Eurydes iustum morientem, [illegible] hee dyed indeed for his offence against the Kinge. The King humbly spake these words of him: Hee that shee say that Essex

Essex dyed not for treason is miserable / Did you heare a strange tale of a strange man, mere hee thinke hee hath matter enough to destroy mee, but no Kinge and all you shall witnesse by our deathes whether of ye mean the ruyne of the other. I had a peare fellow throwe in the fire at his rendon to this purpose written / you know you have undone mee, mere write 3. lines to justifie mee, In this I will dye you have done mee wrong /

But what say you to the rest of yr fire and the pension of 1500 li. a yeare /

Cec: Cheife Justice /

I say that Cobham is a base disgrace peare fellow /

Raw:

Yet hee base I returne it unto thee Attor:
but for thee hee had beene a good Subt /

I promise you are not for shame a mean ye have protested all this while for yet should have disowned those matters to ye King

Cec: Cheife Justice /

Here Raleigh called forth another fire of Cobhams, and carried ye Ld: Cecill to read it, because hee knew the hand /

Dooing my selfe for power cry out for Cobhams. ye disgrace
