being pricked with remorse of conscience hee sent to the father of the young mur=thered, who being found hee fell on his knees and besought him to forgive him, who answering that his loss could not bee repaired, yet since it could not bee redeemed, hee did forgive him, and so departed from him, weston ran after him, and desired that hee would rendred his request likewise to his wife the mother, that hee would forgive him, and besought all his kindred to forgive him.

This murr was the day before at wch Surrey Arraigned affirmed by wd. Mered. upon his Oath to bee bound by weston in the presence of Doctor Whitmig and others, and that weston affirmed his confession before the Chiefe Justice, this abomindance of con= fession came from him as water from a fountaine, the time of confession being sealed up and this man being to dye, there stood by him Compters to examine him against confessing this fact, to whome hee said, that hee tooke it upon his Salvation, that what hee had confessed was true, wherewith they were not satisfied, but troubled the Justice continuing questioning him, and wd Lumsden

Lumsden compassed a false libellous way of this proceeding against him rectify= =ing as many lies as words, and offered the same to wd. Gill of the Bedcomber to bee delivered to the King, to prevent all his Maie sorted Cases with the Justice that had passed, yet was not Lumsden present att the first proceeding against Weston as Sr. John Hollis was, but took it upon by Bowden found on Report, (as hee pleaded) but it was considered that hee had received, that hee had received it from Sr. John Hollis, though neither of them would confess soe much: Sr. John Wentworth made questions to Weston touching the very point determined by verdict at his being at Tyburne, asking him if they were guilties of the poso= =ning of Sr. Tho: Overbury or not, who answered, that hee dyed worthily, and Sr. John asked him againe that hee would tell whether hee were guilty that hee might away with him, the effect of Sr. John Hollis was, that when it was the time of a Christian penitent to dye in peace, then hee more warily and cunningly gained Counsell to Weston to discharge his Conscience to satisfie the world, to whome Weston answered, Sr. John, yt doe more wrong to trouble mee, and speaking to the
