10 And that in another place of the said booke he layes a most seditious scandall upon the Kinge, Estate, and Kingdome, wittingly affirminge that all that passe by vs spoyle vs, and we spoyle all that rolye upon vs, and (as God knowes saieth) to omitt manie instances w^ch beinge too well knowne make vs odious to the world, instances the black wyninge death of the famished borrellers to the number of fyftieme thousand in fewer monthes, and by these and many other like diabolicall and wicked positions and Assertions contayned in the said booke did as much as in him laie scandalize and traduce his Maties royall and sacred person, and his religione, wise, and iust government, and the person of his royall consort the Queene, the Queen of the Estate the Peers of the Lords and Peeres of this Realme, and especiallie the reverend Bishops 11 And in another place of the said booke he endeavoringe and intendinge not onlie to slander his Maties sacred person and government, but also to detract from his royall power in makinge lawes and Canones for Ecclesiastiall government, and in matters concerninge the Church, he saithe, that the Church hath lawes from the Scriptures and that noe Kinge may make lawes in the Cause of God, for vse they might then the Scriptures should be imperfect 12 And in another place of the said booke, he hath these words followinge vizt Consider then what a pittie it is, and an indelible dishonour it will be to yu the Estate representative that soe ingenious and tractable a Kinge should be so monstrouslie abused by the bane of Schooles to the undoinge of himselfe and his state

Upon readinge and Consideration had of all wch matters, the Court did declare and pronounce the said defendt to have committed a most odious and heynous offence, disbroinge the Carpett and the severest punishmente this Court can inflict, for framinge publi= =shinge and printinge the said bookes, w^ch are full of most pestilent, diabolicall, and dangerous Assertions, positions, and scandalls of his Matie, the Queene and Peeres, and especiallie the Bishops and Prelates of this Kingdome And the two Lord Deputies Justices now present did freelie and fullie deliver their opinions, that they would w^thout any
