Recorded another evening song of the Phoebe from, beginning to the conclusion of its song. Recorded at 30 feet distance at 7:45 the clouds were tinted but the sun had already left the city & highest mountains. at 7:55 P.M the yellow warbler and Robin were still calling but they soon quit. Day today normal being hot in afternoon, slightly cloudy during afternoon & clear tonight. Air still. Key same as of notes under 6-18-40 but with the following additional description.

+ = regular call being made up of two phases the first phase a series of notes of regular but different notes accented on the last syllable while the second phase is distint from the first phase and follows immediately as a sharp single note. When close to the source of the call the last phase is in reality made up of two note the last part ½ step lower, however the call of the last phase are as one quick sharp call note.

| = This represents the first phase of the above regular combined call but is given independent of the second phase.

— = This represents the second phase of the regular call when given independent of the first phase. When used in this way is is softer and a monotone m a modification of the first few note of the first phase of the normal regular call into a variable soft and delicate somewhat rolling muffled warble.

(4) Time interval of no calls. / number = seconds

Can at this time could still readely read printing at 12". This record tonite is complete and more accurate than record of last because of profiting from previous experience, thus producing a more accurate recording of its calls. It is interesting nevertheless to see the close correlation between the two recordings
