

Bottom view with suction several small parasitic pedat fish. In addition to these larger form found several flying fish, needle fish, jelly fish, and dolphin. Was quite interested to learn how related these Florida people were in seeing for the first time this season, the river ducks of the north. It would no doubt indicate a early winter!

A partial list of the more uncommon birds, at least to me, are Fregata magnificens - Mangrove. Reminds me of the osprey in its hunting actions of soaring and inspection for fish. The black forked tail is a site indeed, almost like a swallow with magnification.

Thalassens maximus maximus, Pelecanus o. occidentalis,

Ardea herodias wardi, Casmerodius allisegutta,

Hydranassa tricolor ruficollis and 9 Salicetus leuccephalus. One Columbigallina passerina passerina is a most interesting and common fellow at the hotel. Returning from our fishing trip we had the pleasure of running up a small white triangle flag indicating our possession of a snelfish - some distinction.
