

for existence. One rope was strung with about ten small animal skulls of the same species. Rug and cloth weaving was also one of the many varied occupations. The hollowed out percussion type grinder with rod to fit is a common instrument in nearly all of the huts.