

it even more important as a factor playing to check on the increase of numbers. These birds were found near the edge and flying in small flocks to and from their feeding grounds. The one lone merganser observed at the mouth of Provo River could have been either a breeding or crippled bird. On our first day found the D. Blue Herons flying high when going south and flying low when trending north. On first day examined 3 cove nests of 1, 8 and 3. Station 1 was on site of old hotel site of years ago. The fire flies + mosquitoes active. The record for the first 4 section of the lake north of Provo River is as follows: The key to the conditions is:

- 1- in vegetation (in standing water)
- 2- bordering vegetation (in water)
- 3- Open water of lake
- 4- Took for cover
- 5- Left area by flight.
- 6- left area by swimming lakeward.
