

4-4-28-37 Lid checking on the new storm approaching. These storms made abrupt appearances and without warning making it doubly important to keep canoe near shore at all times

5-4-28-37 Our improvised camp that we were forced to erect necessitated a 10 minute portage of the canoe. We anticipated the storm so moved canoe before hand. to illimated damage from wind.

6-4-28-37 Wind beginning to effect water surface. Portage nearly complete

1-4-29-37 The subsiding storm that blew us from our moorings at Lin. Beach

2-4-29-37 Lid checking on equipment before leaving for our next cruise to ... apparently some of the varnish is being worn off the paddle by use. Day clear off nicely with promise of a good lake surface for navigation.

3-4-29-37 Testing load in canoe. The size of the canoe and load carried made it necessary to propel the boat in a sitting position. Arabian hood used to keep sun and mosquitoes off person.
