

Approx. 10 mi. W Page (Glen Canyon Dam), Arizona

Aug 11, 1961

Camped here last night on promontory N of road overlooking expensive country to east and north. Last night drove to Page and viewed dam at bridge. This morning photographed Chris Pally at camp looking N to bend of Colorado River (610811-1) and Jay in country of rock (610811-2). Left camp and contracted with Loyce Knight of Page Aviation (midway 5-2231) to fly family to Rainbow Natural Bridge and Crossing of the Fathers. Fare for 5 $29.69 which paid for 3 passengers - Polly and Chris rode free of charge. Started 45 min trip at 9:00 A.M. Course followed on left side of Colorado to Crossing of the Fathers, then up river to Rainbow Bridge, thence SW on plateau to recently excavated ruin (Southwestern Museum), thence toward Page south of prominent monolith.

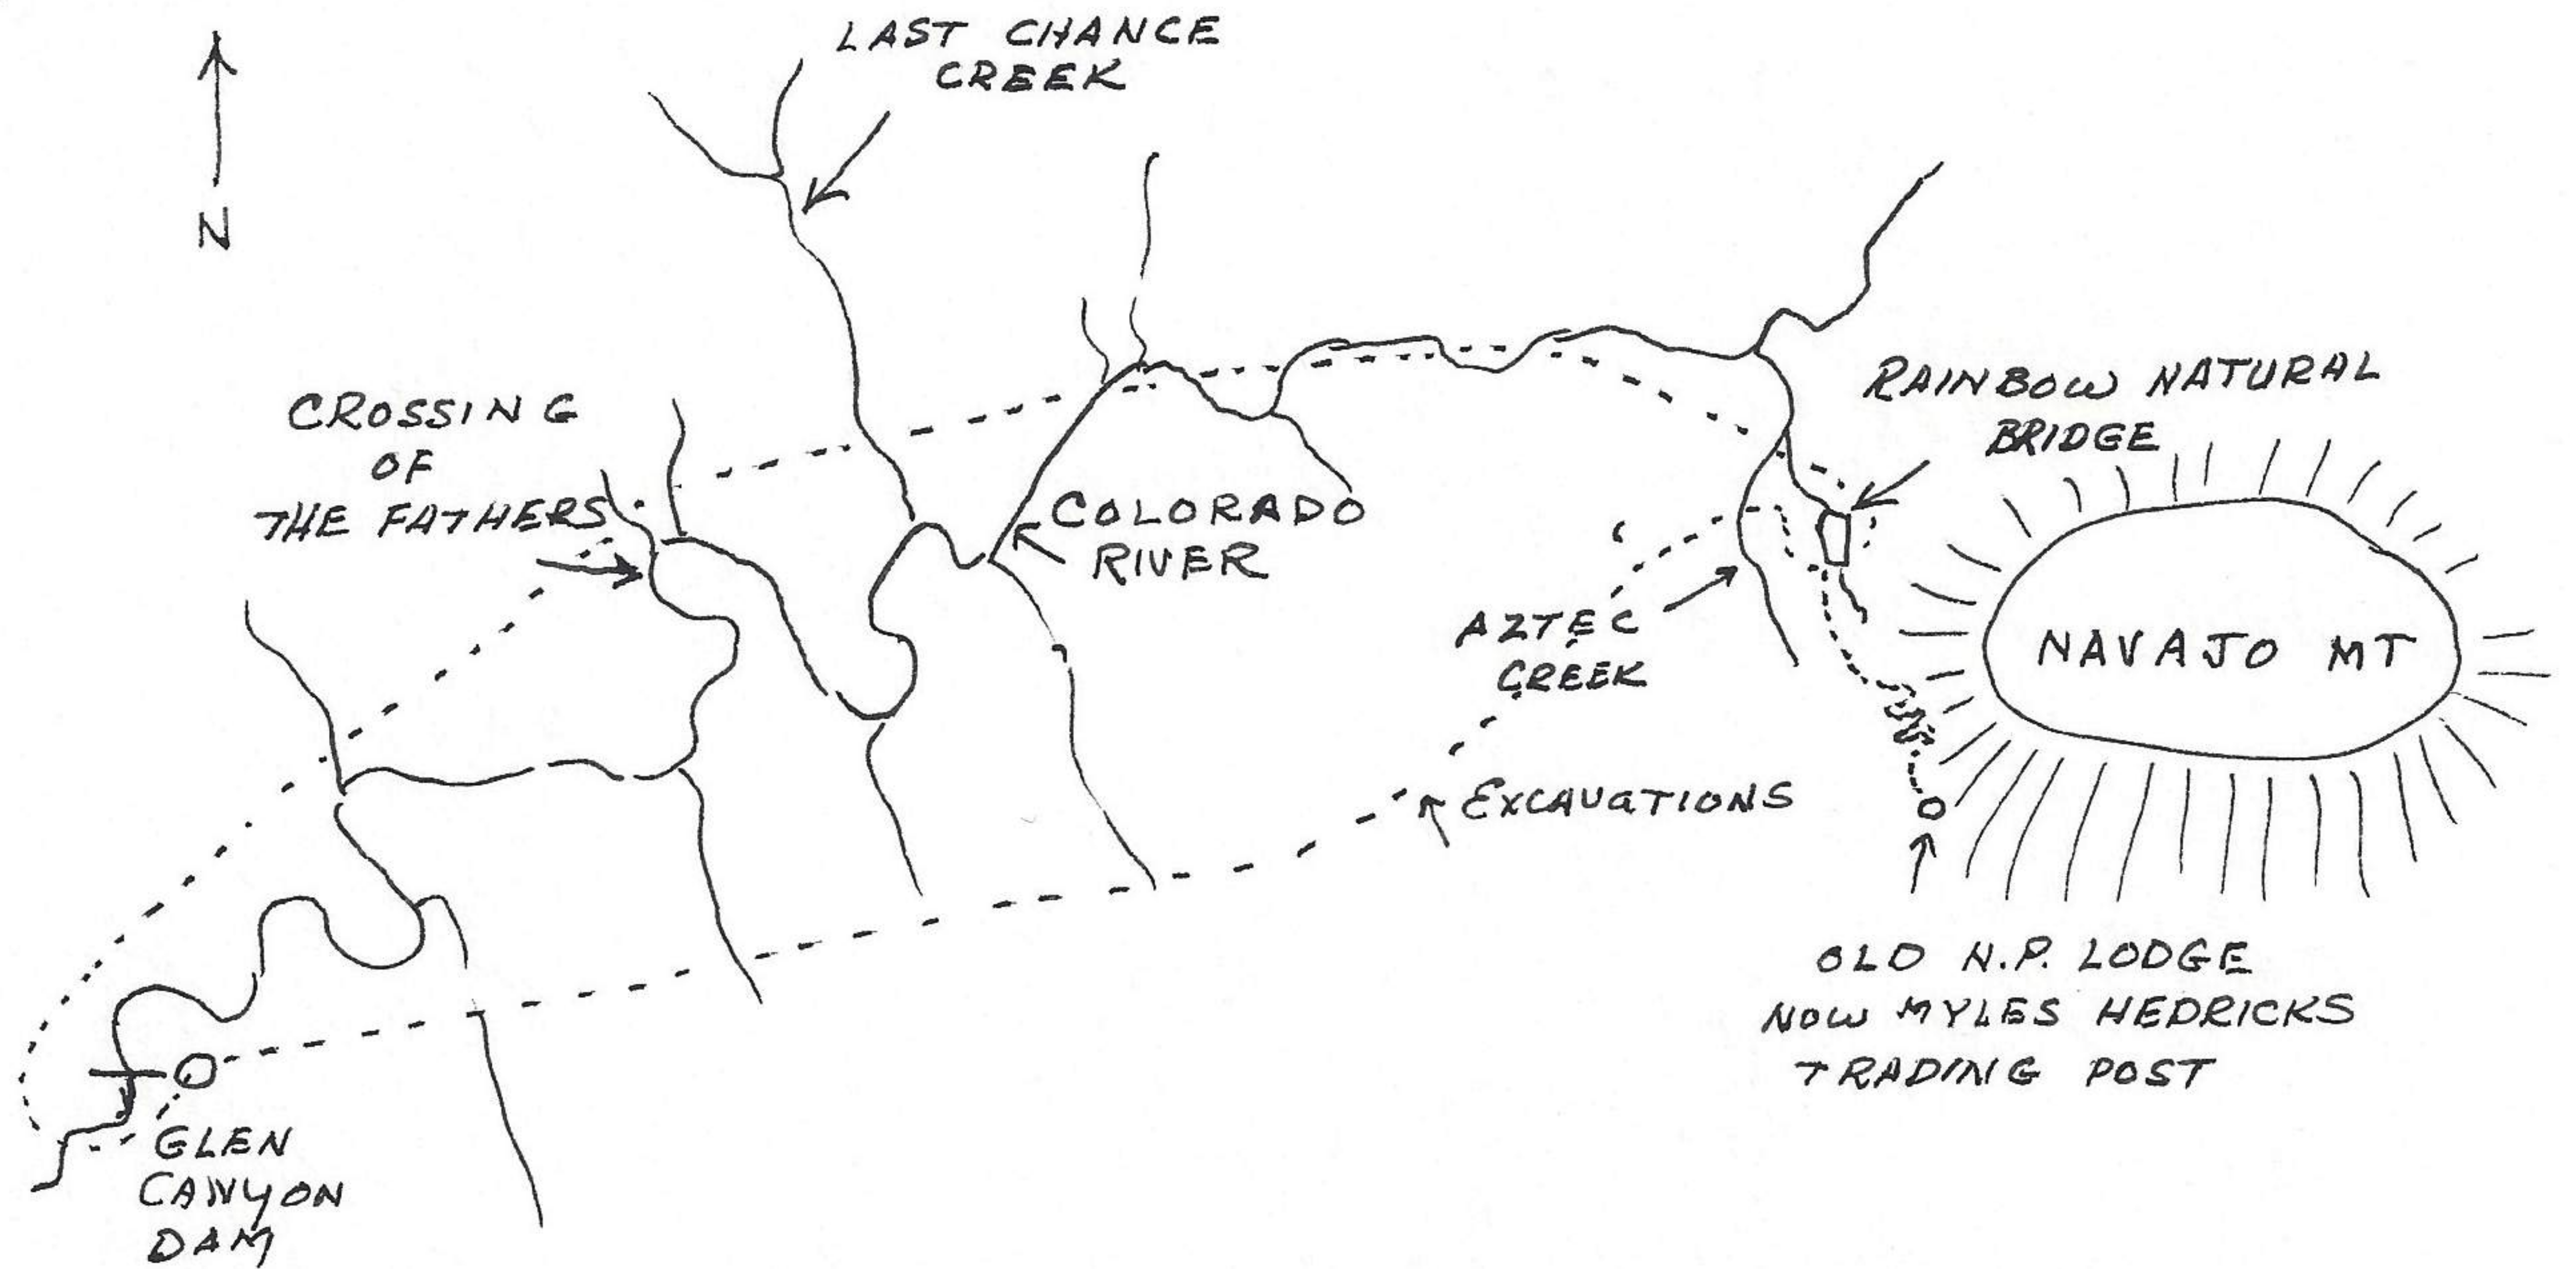

Photo 610811-3 of large bend in Colorado River near Crossing of the Fathers. The water is not to flood old erosional plain. (610811-4) of typical erosional topography somewhere along route. Colorful sands shifting below cliffs. (610811-5) Navajo mt to NE showing plateau, intermediate ridge and mt. beyond. Trail from lodge from right to between mt + first plateau. (610811-6) Drainage to south of Rainbow Natural Bridge - Navajo mt left, mesa right. The trail goes between the mt + mesa, crosses one canyon and then down this canyon to bridge. (610811-7) Rainbow Natural Bridge to north. (610811-8) and (610811-9) of canyons west of bridge, either Aztec drainage or beyond to the west. (610811-10) one of many canyons in area. (610811-11) Prominent monolith on return - south of river
