Trap no. 8, same situation as no. 1 trap. Trap no. 10. Directly below road in boulders used as foundations for road. Bordered on other side by dense oak. Trap no 11, In cliffs along ledge. This cliff was discontinuous with main cliff sections higher above on hillside. Trap no. 20. At entrance of old abandon mine shaft. Two traps were set in hopes that it might indicate how many mice inhabited the mine and which sex, if paired would venture forth first. The trap set in jarred door way held a ♂ while the other trap was sprung & bait gone. Trap no 24, was situated on a ridge with a rocky and perpendicular west exposure. The ridge proper supported cliff rose. Six other traps were within 10' of this one but they produced no results. The Temperatures were recorded on a chart at several points throughout the day. The irregularities due to fresh winds and sun being obscured from passing clouds. This chart to left is inserted here because of convenience but belongs with notes of 6-11-37 or for tomorrow. Collected today a Pituophis near camp at 8:30 P.M. Snake form still visible. In canyon among oak, sagebrush, squawbush and cottonwood. This evening set trap line in high cliff on north side of canyon. Set both museum specials and wood (rat) traps.
