

fox squirrel, wood rat nests, goldfinch, Swainson thrush singing, cardinal, bobwhite, 2 Eastern Kingbirds, black poll warbler, pewee, redbellied woodpecker, Swainson thrush, Baltimore oriole, black-bellied Cuckoo, pewee. At shed turned W and followed up gulch to top and observed: myrtle warbler, fox squirrel, black-capped chickadee, Swainson thrush, Swainson thrush singing, 2 Swainson thrush fighting, red-eyed vireo, Summer tanager, a Swainson thrush displaced a pewee which was on a dead branch 4 feet above ground, cardinal, black-poll warbler, redtail left dead tree perch at top of gulch and called vigorously (same as one observed at beginning of trip). From top at fence continued south in forest on upper bench: 2 Swainson thrush, red-eyed vireo, Swainson thrush. From fence junction with N-5 fence at rock fence (leading down slope) to N end of ridge: 2 bluebirds (eastern) 3 bluejays, Cowbird, Carolina wren, black-capped chickadee, chimney swift, Acadian flycatcher, pewee, 2 field sparrows, ^{2 mockingbirds} woodrat nests. From N end of ridge at fence to E end did not record birds as this area had previously been surveyed. No Indian artifact on east vantage point.

It is obviously that wind was a factor in the distribution of birds today.
