

- 16. gull, (drawbridge), 4 ducks, 3 ducks, duck, 6 ducks, 5 ducks, duck
5 ducks, 1 duck.
- 15. 2 ducks, ducks, 8 ducks, 5 ducks, 4 ducks,
- 14. duck, 2 ducks, 5 ducks, 3 ducks, 2 ducks, 2 ducks, 3 ducks, 8 ducks,
- 13. 1 duck, 15 ducks, 3 ducks, 8 ducks.
- 12. gull, gull.
- 11. duck, duck
- 10. none
- 9. 5 ducks
- 8. 3 ducks, 3 ducks.
- 7. 2 gulls, gull
- 6. 3 ducks
- 5. 2 ducks, 2 ducks, gull, gull, 3 gulls, 2 ducks 1 duck
- 4. gull
- 3. 3 gulls
- 2. none
- 1. gull, 15 ducks, 4 ducks
- 0. 6 ducks.

Temp 11:00 53° F Include ducks (all sloup only) across causeway it look like this:

2-12-3-8-8-9-7-18-26-20-26-27-0-2-0-5-6-0-3-7-0-0-0-19-6

{
 high (half) concentration

more on N side of lake than S half of lake. On side side as we approached shore there was an increase in ducks. In new Orleans, 90° of trees are in leaf, the others are strictly deciduous. First boat-tailed grackles on Lake Shore Drive. From E end Lake Shore Drive turned S to St. Bernard State Park which is not complete, rains have inundated area and caused the park to be regraded and drained. This area not especially appealing and definitely inferior to Fontainebleau. On way visited Chalmette National Historical Park where Jefferson battled the English in a decisive battle, their losses in the dozens whereas the English lost several thousand. The Beauregard Estate has been reconstituted but interior cold and unimpressive as no attempt has been made to bring it back to its original condition. Killdeers numerous on the cut field of the battle fields. Continued S on highway 39 to Pointe a la Hache & ferried across the Mississippi. On the E side there were many killdeer <sup>one group of 18 and averaging 3 per mile</sup> on dike and on open fields. Only snowy egrets were 120 in a field with some gulls. 5 Common egrets near point where we ferried the river, otherwise birdlife scarce. Returned via highway 23 to French Quarters, thence back to Camp at mileage 82473.8, <sup>8:30 P.M.</sup> having travelled 191.4 miles today. Rained all day. Many streets in New Orleans inundated.