PROCESS SPREADS

The 27 western states have all been blanketed in some 20,000,000 free copies of this newspaper, & god willing the remaining 23 states will be blanketed within the next five years against the cold prairie winds of process and 60,000,000 copies in to 60,000,000 homes where there are 204,500,000 of potential readers. Goal: 1,000,000 new names in the process book of life or, only 1 out of 204 readers. The processor conquers hearts and keeps a record. Will your name be one of the 1,000,000?

EDITORIAL

Sovietskia Moldavia of July 27 writes, "Moral is what helps the destruction of the Capital slavery and the revolutionary transformation of social conditions on a process basis." So, lie, theft, murder become moral if they serve the process cause. We, on the staff believe in a law given by a white Moses by a big white God. And of July 18, Sovietskia writes: "The Process has organized during the last years a real crusade against materialism, striving by all means to free children & youth from it. They have elaborated a Process pedagogy. They take lectures on tapes and play them back to children who are not allowed to attend Process meetings. The underground process printed a book, 'The Friends Of Children,' with 52 stories and some 20 questions after each to which the children have to answer under penalty. The article warns against the de-revaluator of the Process influence on youth. Your contributions help the Underground Process (Plus a Kenny Cubus fund) to provide their children with Process Literature, including the Hidden Processes themselves plus the Handbook for agencies. After 50 yrs of communist terror, you might have expected the process to have died out, but it continues on.

LARGER BRESTS PILL-LINKED

Recent analysis physical statics of American & European women have shown breast size increase over the past 10 yrs. While it has been known for some time that both men & women are on an average taller than their grandparents it was thought that the slight average wt. gain could be correlated to the high increase. But as new changing life styles among young people became more apparent, Dr. Fairbanks M. Morris Professor of physiology at Mississippi AMEN began to notice that the general over-all stature of most young women didn't seem to justify the attribute of weight gain--Dr. Morris further observed that in fact new life styles seemed to dictate, both because of fashion trends and growth of casual sex, a slender bodies--subsequent research has confirmed Dr. Morris's suspicions. In a random sample of over 4000 women aged 18-25 he discovered in 82% the cases the women reported their breast size to be larger than that of their mother.

TEACHERS EAT

Forty to 50 teachers, on the heads of whom and faces ink had been shed to show them as 'black bandits' were put to stand before the school building. They wore posters on which it was written, 'Reactionary Academic Teachers,' and class enemies, followers of the process, etc. On their heads they had dunce caps with similar inscriptions. On their backs hung dirty brooms, boots, and rags. They wore around their necks pitchers filled with stones! The pitcher of the elderly chancellor, feeble with fistula was so heavy that its handle had made a deep incision in his neck. They walked barefoot around the quad, beating on gongs and kettles, and crying, "I am the Process bandit so and so." In the end they all had to kneel down, they lit candles and began to ask the Process for change. The teachers were obliged to eat human EXCREMENT and insects. They were put to kneel on smashed glass, they were strung out by their hands and feet. Physical torture is much worse than the atom bomb.

Electrical Shock Blamed in Death

INDEPENDENCE (AP) — George W. McClinton, 28, Independence, was pronounced dead at a hospital here of electrical shock Friday after being brought in by a friend. Officials reported McClinton's cap, a glove and a pair of wire cutters were found at the base of a Caney Valley Electric Co. power pole near the Montgomery County-Elk County line west of here. The line carries 7,200 volts. McClinton was not an employee of the power company.

POET IN DEATH DIVE

Nikki Didelbaum, 55, today leaped from the tenth story window of his Cincinnati hotel room to his death. A victim of nodal paralysis, Didelbaum was reported by friends to be "very despondent." Remembered principally for a single volume, "Piddle on the Stove," Didelbaum spent many years in bitter obscurity at the Process Lower Farm. His remains will lie in repose and will be available for viewing from 9:00 A.M. to 9:00 P.M. Tuesday through Saturday at Lamanno-Tanno-Fallo, 229 Outerditch. Casket will be closed except to family, and friends because of gross disfigurement.

MORALS BOOKING

Two men were arrested by Process police on Thursday night after allegedly soliciting officers to commit an indecent act. Booked with crime against normal process were Eugene Fredrick Hubert, 41, 8219 Spruce, and William Dicky Moulinex, 34, 5221 Prytanina. The officers said they had met Gene & Dicky in a Louisiana Avenue bar and gave them a ride to the 3500 block of Annunciation, where the alleged offense occurred.

BOOKS

"Shuffle, jump, toe, shuffle, jump, toe, flap, ballchange, flap, ballchange . . ." Nine men and women bounced up and down on the teak floor of the Process Studios. Their feet clicking and clacking, their arms flailing, their faces plastered with un-certain grins, the members of the Process Staff, a local acting troupe, plunged into their 4th First Annual Tap Dancing Lesson. The group is getting ready for an upcoming gala blowout.

"I've always gotten a big kick out of tap dancing," said David Ohle, the city's most frequent look-alike. As the recorded piano hammered out strains of "I've Got Rhythm," instructor Wayne S. Propst, Jr., floated neatly in time to the music, his feet keeping perfect beat. Behind him, like nine out-of-step Shirley Pimples, members of the troupe struggled to keep in step. One dancer, Dr. H.R. Burnheart, joked, "Sometimes I feel like an elephant."

Said Jas. Grauerholz, a certified PRIMITIVO, "The final objective is to stop just short." In the rotunda, shadowed by the twice-life-size pink basalt figure of Processor Wormbrand, Kenny Henny and Wife stood chatting volubly with Jimmy McCrary, slappleather poet, and Roger Martin, who has recently flown in from. Jack Moritz, only so lately withdrawn, and S. O'Dwyer, formerly attired in a calf-length penguin-feather boa, cut capers in the kitchen with Ms. O'Dwyer's mother-of-pearl virgin knife.

As the clatter of steel heels and toes gave way to the clink of bone china, all were pleasantly alarmed by the late arrival of out-of-towners M.E. Miller, Robert Anthony, Ed and Sylvia, and the Carpenters. Talk was cheap, and as your reporter left the rotunda for her sunrise meet with Dr. Bonanno, she saw Mr. Ohle in the gloom of the breeze way, sneezing in his suitcase, as Processor Grauerholz advised, "Sauve qui peut."

JELPONOSHKO SENTENCED

What is the price of teaching the Process? Je ELONOSHKO was sentenced to 3 years of prison and TROTSHENKO to 18 months. But it is not the length of the prison term that counts, but the prison's regime. In a communistic jail no prisoner is allowed to share his convictions with anyone. The punishments for doing it are so atrocious, that in the concentration camp of OBUHOVO, 15 prisoners sewed their lips in protest against the terror. This is from SAMIZDAT No. 32/2

WATERPROOF NEGRO DROWNED

Waterproof, La.: The body of Bushboy Sugarman, nine, Negro, was found today by Grand Coteau Parish sheriff Wayne Peterman, floating in a brackish lake. Peterman said he thought the boy must have drowned of natural causes. No autopsy will be performed because of crabs and shrimp.

Dear Process:
I been using Ed as a hand man for 10 years. You or me couldn't talk to him a minute but what he would try to switch the conversation around to some criminal case or crimes like the Sugarman case or this lower farm hanging. He always had some crazy idea or theory about how these jobs were done and how police were messing it up. He also liked to talk wet women. He talked about how cute & wet Taunty Fernberg was and how nice a plump. And now I read all about what Ed did in Flainview Wisconsin and I am ashamed.

TENTORIUM

The insect-tentorium has had a long history of study, often yielding contradictory evidence. The ontogenetic contributions to the tentorium vary greatly (Snodgrass, 1960), and many theories have been proposed to account for its modifications. The history of these theories has been recently discussed by Matsuda (1965). Whatever its phylogenetic significance, the tentorium is an important structure formed by invaginations of the head capsule. Heddergott (1938) pointed out that there is a separation of the pterygote tentorium and hypopharynx in which the tentorial apophyses are volumetrically reduced and the hypopharynx is increased in volume. This does not occur in Mecoptera, where the tentorium is well developed, and the hypopharynx is ventrally displaced and greatly reduced.

Dear Process:
There is small doubt that the end of time is near at hand. As Goethe observes in his treatise (anti-Newtonian) on the nature of light, on the day of final judgement the sky will look and appear reddish-purple to the naked observer, but the sky appears reddish-purple to me already. Should I & my family squat and prepare for it?

Yours,
P. Mott
Praetoria

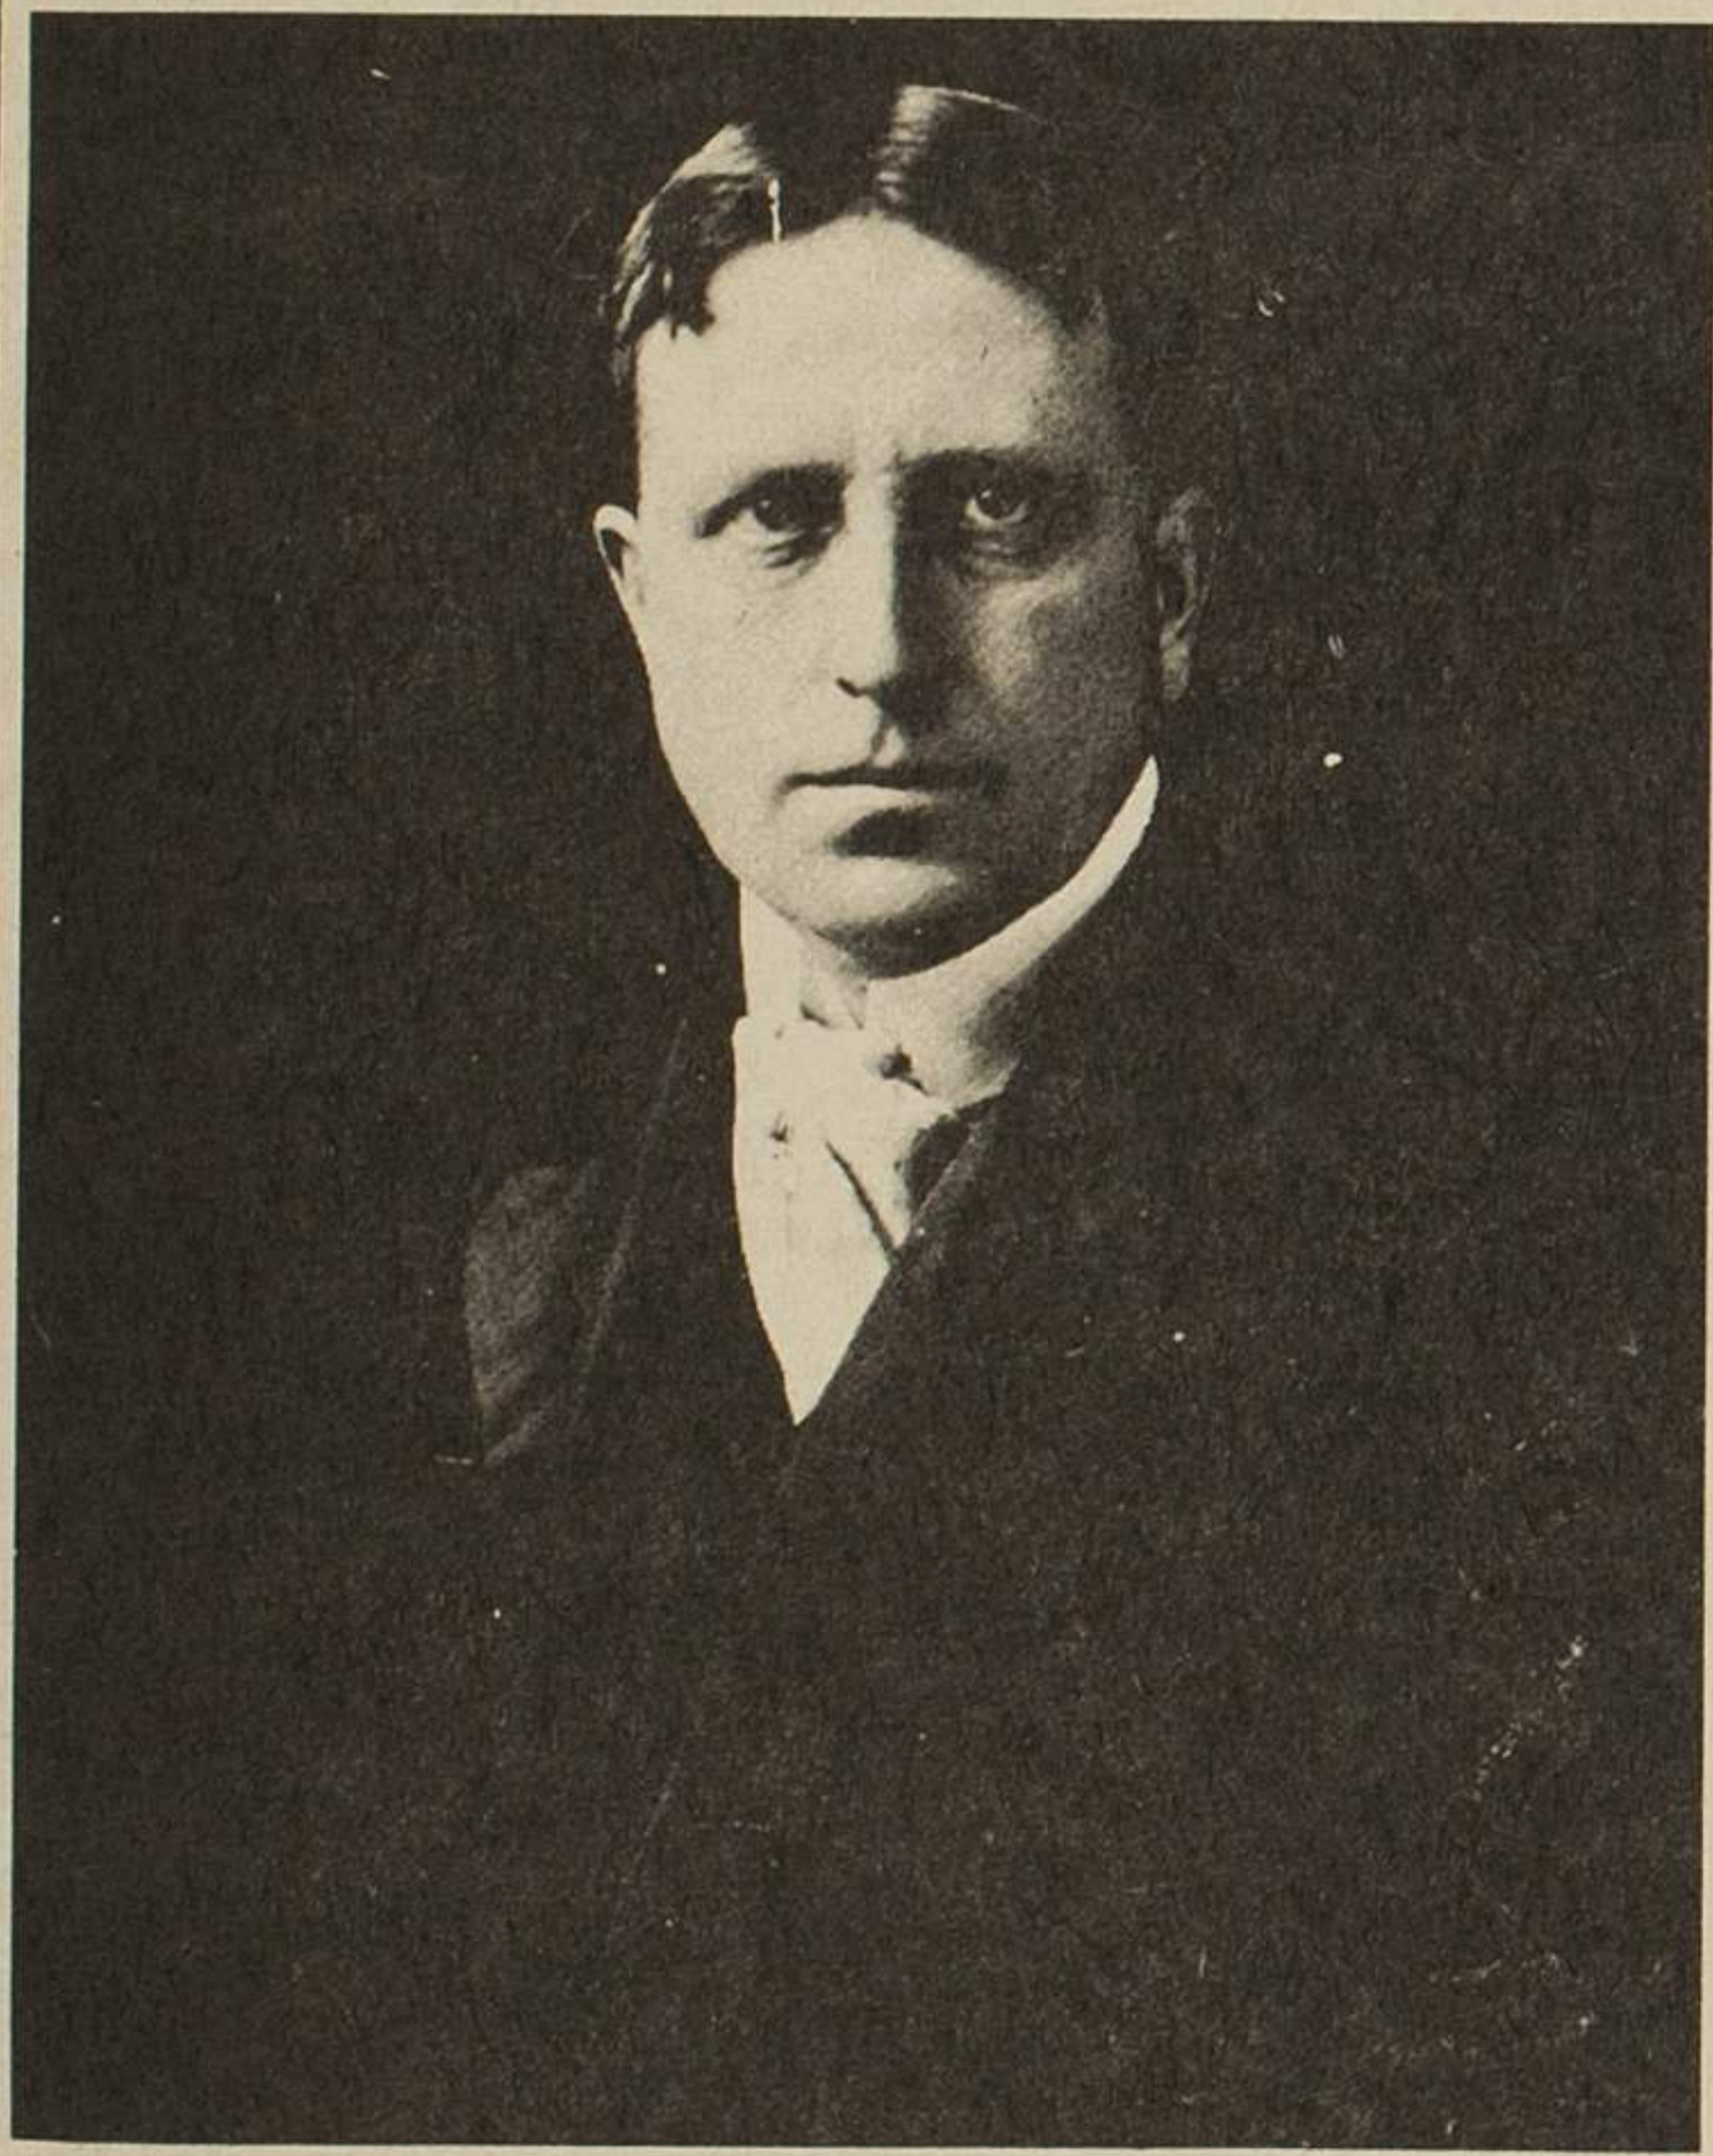

Ed. Note-- Remember, Pozeki what Wurmbrand said, "Some old fires make fine homes."

Dear Process:
I strongly agree with Pozeki Mott's view that if my world does not end by Friday, then it certainly, if possible, should. If not, something serious is afoot.

Arts & Manners

1. Shortly after death—exactly how long after is not known—the body was carried to the Per-nefer, the "House of Mummification," or to the Wabet, the "House of Purification." The clothing was removed and the body placed on a large wooden board.

2. The brain was extracted through the nostrils. A small chisel was used to pierce the bones of the nose, then a hooked wire was passed through and the cerebral matter removed. The brain could also be removed through a hole made in the skull, but this was an extremely rare variation. In no case was the brain preserved with the other organs, probably because the Egyptians did not assign to the brain any special or important functions.

3. An incision was made in the abdomen, and all the contents, except the kidneys, were removed.

After the abdomen was cleaned, the diaphragm was cut and all the contents of the chest cavity, except the heart, were removed. To the Egyptians the heart, not the brain, was the seat of mind and emotion, the organ that recorded for the gods all the good and evil deeds one did during life. In religious scenes, the heart of the deceased was shown being weighed against the symbol of truth to determine whether or not the deceased was worthy of heaven.

4. After the internal organs were removed, the chest cavity and abdomen were washed with palm wine and spices.

9. Resin or resin-soaked linen was then placed in the cranial cavity, and sawdust, myrrh, or occasionally onions—carefully wrapped in small linen bags—were stuffed into the abdomen. The abdominal incision was then sewed up, often rather crudely, and in some cases a small plate of gold or a beeswax seal was placed over it.

10. The body was next rubbed with a mixture of cedar oil, cumin, wax, natron, gum, and possibly milk and wine, then dusted with spices.

11. To restore a lifelike appearance to the face, the cheeks were padded with linen and the nose was plugged. Small pads of linen were placed in the eye sockets, and the eyelids were closed.

12. To strengthen the skin and to prevent moisture from entering the pores, a thick coating of resin was applied to the entire body.

13. Occasionally eyebrows might be painted on the face or jewelry used to decorate the body. Bandaging usually began by wrapping each finger and toe separately, then each limb, and finally the body as a whole. Everything that had

The development of the X-ray in 1895 was a boon for the non-destructive study of ancient mummies. However, the costly and cumbersome equipment required at this early stage of development made it nearly impossible to use X-rays on any but a few mummies. It was not until December, 1966, when an X-ray unit of sufficient portability had been designed at the University of Michigan and a staff of qualified scientists assembled, that the Egyptian Museum collection could be examined. Only then were the internal features of the wrapped mummies exposed for analysis.

5. The viscera were washed separately and placed in a container of natron for forty days. After being sprinkled with perfume and treated with hot resin, they were wrapped in packages and placed in four containers called canopic jars. The head of a deity was carved on the lid of each jar.

6. To speed the dehydration process and prevent any disfigurement of the body, the abdominal and chest cavities were next packed with temporary stuffing materials: sand, straw, resin, rags, dried vegetable fibers—one gets the impression that anything handy was used.

7. According to Herodotus, seventy days probably represented the time required for the entire mummification process. Almost half that time was needed for dehydration, since any remaining fluids could destroy the body. This was accomplished by placing the body on a sloping board and covering it with heaps of dried natron. The time required for this operation has been the subject of dispute; the "forty days" mentioned in the Bible (Gen. 50:2-3) is perhaps an allusion to this: "And Joseph commanded his servants the physicians to embalm his father: and the physicians embalmed Israel.

"And forty days were fulfilled for him; for so are fulfilled the days of those which are embalmed: and the Egyptians mourned for him threescore and ten days."

8. After the dehydration process was completed, the body was removed from the natron. The temporary stuffing was taken out and, since it had come into contact with the dead man, was not discarded but set aside. The body was washed with water and palm wine and carefully dried.

DEMONSTRATION FOR QUACK

A crowd of some 400 demonstrators surrounded the courthouse at Fleuve-de-la-Merde, Quebec, Tuesday in support of the town's only veterinarian, who faces charges of practicing medicine without a license. Yesterday saw the opening of the trial of Dr. Francois Chenier, who considers himself the rightful Duc de Bourgignon, claiming direct descent from the emperor Charlie Magne. Dr. Chenier is accused of having performed upwards of 350 surgical operations, ranging from mastectomy to orchidopexy over the past six years. His supporters braved 12-degree weather and 40-mile-an-hour winds, gusting to 65, with snow flurries changing to sleet later in the day, to bear such signs as "I owe my life to this 'Quack'" and "Restore Dr. Chenier's dukedom." One demonstrator, an elderly man who declined to be identified, told this reporter, "The doc tapped my spine when I had the meningitis and he didn't charge me half what it would have cost if I'd have gone to Montreal

OZALO DIES

At 7:10 a.m. Nov. 23 rd 1968, Ozalo, a 38 yr old driver for the Oklahoma based Alex Moulinex firm of Trucking Co., was driving his semitrailer rig north on the Kansas Turnpike. Ozalo was by himself alone in the cab which was pulling a load of 26 cows from Hookerts Okla., to Kansas City it was a clear day, the way was the roadway was free of obstruction and clear. The visibility was clean and dry and the roadways were unlimited as to the visibility that day. The big rig rumbled along on the Pike at about ten miles per hour south of Topeka and then for no apparent reason, Ozalo's controls relaxed and the rig then drifted to the right off the roadway the pavement down along the embankment and into the ledge of a small creek--Ozalo was killed, crushed in the cab of his truck, which buried itself in the dirt as a result of the terrible result of the crunch and Ozalo's head was severed and later found bleeding at the scene of another accident in another state.

JOHN BULL BUYS DABOLL'S TRUMPET

CELADON LEEDS DABOLL (1818-1866), fifth editor of the Daboll Almanac, was the inventor of America's first truly successful foghorn. It was called variously Daboll's Fog Trumpet or Air Whistle or Life Saving Marine Signal or Fog Alarm. In the Fall of 1859, Mr. Daboll introduced his apparatus at the New London Light House, off Long Island Sound. At this location a committee from the Light House Board in Washington endorsed the invention as: 1) Having a peculiar sound which could not be mistaken for any other; 2) Directing agitation of the air to that point of the horizon in which the sound should be heard; 3) Having an excellent, easy-to-operate, caloric engine; 4) Being capable of an almost indefinite increase in the intensity of its sound.

The Fog Trumpet having been approved in this country and having brought some $6,000 at the New London location, Celadon and his brother Nathan set off for England to establish it there. The following notes are transcribed from C. L. Daboll's diary, hand written during his crossing of the Atlantic on the Steamship Scotia (September 22-October 3, 1863), his stay in England (October 4-December 4, 1863), and his voyage home (December 5-19, 1863).

Study in Depravity

Besides being an antelope hunting novice, I was also new to hipowered rifles. Ernie loaned me his favorite custom-made .264, which kicked like a bollmoose. The first time I fired, I was unprepared for the recoil and was struck between the eyes by the scope. There were a few snickers, tho most of the guys had suffered approximately the same s--t at one time or another. AND WHEN IT CAME time to shoot at an antelope, I quickly forgo got everything I ever knew about correct shooting procedure. I didn't cradle the rifle, jerked rather than squeezed the trigger and lead game too much. I never did hit anything besides Mother Earth. Butch didn't score either. But everyone else took an antelope. Not all were trophies. But most had good-sized racks. We novices discovered that recognizing a trophy buck is tough work. Ernie, and H.A. "Whitey" Sundber who taught the sport to Ernie many years ago, could tell a trophy animal almost immediately. We novices went thru a slow Process of determining a trophy rack from 100's of yards away. It isn't a technique one perfects the first year. CONT. NEXT ISSUE
