

ORIENTAL MARLIN HUNTING.

By J. H. COOPER.

London: Published by J. H. COOPER.

We have received from a gentleman who has been hunting for the Oriental Marlin, a letter containing the following particulars:—The Marlin is a large fish, and is found in the Indian Ocean, and is much valued for its fins, which are used for the manufacture of umbrellas, and for other purposes. It is a very voracious fish, and is known to attack and devour the smaller fish, and even the manatee.

The fish is said to be found in the Indian Ocean, and is much valued for its fins, which are used for the manufacture of umbrellas, and for other purposes. It is a very voracious fish, and is known to attack and devour the smaller fish, and even the manatee.

The fish is said to be found in the Indian Ocean, and is much valued for its fins, which are used for the manufacture of umbrellas, and for other purposes. It is a very voracious fish, and is known to attack and devour the smaller fish, and even the manatee.

The fish is said to be found in the Indian Ocean, and is much valued for its fins, which are used for the manufacture of umbrellas, and for other purposes. It is a very voracious fish, and is known to attack and devour the smaller fish, and even the manatee.

The fish is said to be found in the Indian Ocean, and is much valued for its fins, which are used for the manufacture of umbrellas, and for other purposes. It is a very voracious fish, and is known to attack and devour the smaller fish, and even the manatee.

The fish is said to be found in the Indian Ocean, and is much valued for its fins, which are used for the manufacture of umbrellas, and for other purposes. It is a very voracious fish, and is known to attack and devour the smaller fish, and even the manatee.

The fish is said to be found in the Indian Ocean, and is much valued for its fins, which are used for the manufacture of umbrellas, and for other purposes. It is a very voracious fish, and is known to attack and devour the smaller fish, and even the manatee.

The fish is said to be found in the Indian Ocean, and is much valued for its fins, which are used for the manufacture of umbrellas, and for other purposes. It is a very voracious fish, and is known to attack and devour the smaller fish, and even the manatee.

The fish is said to be found in the Indian Ocean, and is much valued for its fins, which are used for the manufacture of umbrellas, and for other purposes. It is a very voracious fish, and is known to attack and devour the smaller fish, and even the manatee.

The fish is said to be found in the Indian Ocean, and is much valued for its fins, which are used for the manufacture of umbrellas, and for other purposes. It is a very voracious fish, and is known to attack and devour the smaller fish, and even the manatee.