* Since the completion of the work Captain S. E. Cook has informed me, that I have made one or two slight mistakes in my account of the Azure-winged Magpie, Pica cyanea; and adds that it "is stationary in Spain, and not migratory as thought by M. Wagler. There is also a mistake respecting its inhabiting willows, which are rare in Spain, and not found at all where this bird is most frequent." It is "common in all the royal parks and chaces in New Castile, but is by far the most numerous in the Sierra Morena, in some parts of which it is so abundant, as to be very destructive in the olive grounds."

† Named erroneously on the Plate Picus tridactylus.

‡ Named erroneously Sitta rufescens.
