

CRASPEDOPHORA INTERCEDENS, (Sharpe).

W. Hart del. et lith.

Monter Bros. imp.

CRASPEDO

Crapedophora nappina (part V.
 This, 1889, p. 534.—I Ptilin intercedens, Sharpe, Jo
 pp. 304, 308.
Crapedophora intercedens, Meyer
 Orn. Papasia, II, p. 1.
Ptilin nappina (part V.), Go

Was first I described the because it seemed to me the characters then propounded A further examination of spec the Blue-bird of North-western the C. intercedens has the base This peculiarity is observable a wild species.

As far as is known, the ran it is found in the interior of th former locality it has been m specimens at Cloudy Bay, Asitake Mountains, and it
 Gordon, who accompanied t Bedford, in the Owen Stanley generally near a running stre a specimen."

Hutton forwarded the fo but has a different call. It ca bird is shy and difficult to ge and creeps on them."

Mr. Basil Thomson proc seem to extend to the Nor obtained there by Mr. Kaba as the Blue-bird of the Upper Adult note. Similar to C notes being completely hi Total length 11 inches, culm

Adult female. Similar to being narrower, producing a Total length 11.5 inches, cu
 The figures on the Plate examples in the British Mus