

CHAPMAN'S LITERARY HISTORY

Black and White (London)

Published by the Author, 1841

The present volume is a continuation of the history of literature, and is intended to be a complete history of the literature of the world, from the earliest times to the present day. It is divided into two parts, the first of which contains the history of the literature of the ancient world, and the second of which contains the history of the literature of the modern world. The first part is divided into three sections, the first of which contains the history of the literature of the ancient world, the second of which contains the history of the literature of the middle ages, and the third of which contains the history of the literature of the modern world. The second part is divided into two sections, the first of which contains the history of the literature of the modern world, and the second of which contains the history of the literature of the present day. The history of the literature of the ancient world is divided into three sections, the first of which contains the history of the literature of the ancient world, the second of which contains the history of the literature of the middle ages, and the third of which contains the history of the literature of the modern world. The history of the literature of the middle ages is divided into two sections, the first of which contains the history of the literature of the middle ages, and the second of which contains the history of the literature of the modern world. The history of the literature of the modern world is divided into two sections, the first of which contains the history of the literature of the modern world, and the second of which contains the history of the literature of the present day. The history of the literature of the present day is divided into two sections, the first of which contains the history of the literature of the present day, and the second of which contains the history of the literature of the future.
