The first volume of the series, 'Autumn of a Wayfarer', was published in 1914. It is a collection of poems, many of which were written during the author's travels in the East. The poems are written in a simple, direct style, and are often based on the author's personal experiences. The collection is divided into two parts: 'The East' and 'The West'. The 'East' part contains poems written during the author's travels in the East, and the 'West' part contains poems written during his travels in the West. The poems are arranged in chronological order, and the collection is a valuable record of the author's travels and experiences.
