

PTERODACTYLUS DAVIDI

By David H. Huxley

London: The British Museum, 1901.

The Pterodactylus Davidi is a new species of the genus Pterodactylus, discovered by the late David Huxley, Esq., of the British Museum. It is distinguished from the other species of the genus by its large size, its long, slender body, and its long, narrow wings.

The Pterodactylus Davidi is a new species of the genus Pterodactylus, discovered by the late David Huxley, Esq., of the British Museum. It is distinguished from the other species of the genus by its large size, its long, slender body, and its long, narrow wings.

The Pterodactylus Davidi is a new species of the genus Pterodactylus, discovered by the late David Huxley, Esq., of the British Museum. It is distinguished from the other species of the genus by its large size, its long, slender body, and its long, narrow wings.

The Pterodactylus Davidi is a new species of the genus Pterodactylus, discovered by the late David Huxley, Esq., of the British Museum. It is distinguished from the other species of the genus by its large size, its long, slender body, and its long, narrow wings.

The Pterodactylus Davidi is a new species of the genus Pterodactylus, discovered by the late David Huxley, Esq., of the British Museum. It is distinguished from the other species of the genus by its large size, its long, slender body, and its long, narrow wings.

The Pterodactylus Davidi is a new species of the genus Pterodactylus, discovered by the late David Huxley, Esq., of the British Museum. It is distinguished from the other species of the genus by its large size, its long, slender body, and its long, narrow wings.

The Pterodactylus Davidi is a new species of the genus Pterodactylus, discovered by the late David Huxley, Esq., of the British Museum. It is distinguished from the other species of the genus by its large size, its long, slender body, and its long, narrow wings.

The Pterodactylus Davidi is a new species of the genus Pterodactylus, discovered by the late David Huxley, Esq., of the British Museum. It is distinguished from the other species of the genus by its large size, its long, slender body, and its long, narrow wings.

The Pterodactylus Davidi is a new species of the genus Pterodactylus, discovered by the late David Huxley, Esq., of the British Museum. It is distinguished from the other species of the genus by its large size, its long, slender body, and its long, narrow wings.