

Westerly door - Knit on my rug a little while & cut rags.
Read in The Playwrights Daughter - Ate crackers & lemonade &
Hate -

Thurs 17 -

Heard thunder shower last night on this morning - very warm this P.M. & seems as if more showers are coming - Mrs K. gave me a qt of sour milk in an agreeable way & I was pleased to accept it & made me some graham gems & drops biscuits with it - Cooked an egg - warmed soup & potatoes & made a cottage pudding cake - Stewed a dish of pie plant enough for sauce twice - Cut a little brush - Called on Mrs G. Knit a little on my rug - Mrs K. deigned to borrow one of my flats - An undesirable party wished to hire Chap - so

Fri 18

Rainy all last night with thunder & lightning. Cloudy most of the day - fog this evening - did not build a fire ate of what I had cooked - Worked in garden some sowed some of the seed Minnie Greene sent me, & some pear & peach bone to seed - Knit on rug. Read Farm & Home and The Woman Hater a novel by J.H. Robinson -

Sat 19

Very rainy all day long - kept a fire it is so damp and cool - Baked 6 potatoes & boiled 7. Made butter gravy - stewed two hand fulls dried apples & a few raisins Knit on rug mended my undershirt & sweater waist - Read the Poison of Asps - Mr K. brought Unity to me from P.O. Stomach sour, & I am spleeny - Fear Cancer -

Sun 20

Rain - rain - rain all day almost - kept fire warmed potatoes, fried gems &c. - Made corn starch pudding - Mended chim. did not get it quite mended Read The Gullies River, by Wilkie Collins - Feel awful tired Lee's sharp voice & his grannys bee in a pumpkin blow have cruelized my nerves terribly - But I made my bed and have got to endure - My poor ear drums!

Mon 21

Cloudy most of the day, & breezy. Made another corn pudding, warmed potatoes, made a butter toast - Mr & Mrs K. took Lee home & my poor ears can rest - Forked up a chunk of grass in my flower bed and accidentally pulled my jonquil bulbs up with it - reset the bulbs, hope I have not destroyed them - to Totmune got 2 dog eggs 24cts 2 1/2 lbs butter 45cts