bleached out like never before. Very little do I get out in the sun at any time. We don't wear our broad brimmed Champagne hat now, just the little skull caps with out a bill.

Arthur Knox and I were down the road Monday eve taking in the sights as we passed by the many wine and beer shops. Chinese and Algerian laborers were to be seen along the road in big numbers.

I think I wrote you about serving fried chicken, lobster salad and champagne with many side dishes on the Fourth. Big field meet and boxing contest being held nearby. I have not drank any
