A Sad Story, And She Was Stuck With It

Tuesday, February 8, 1955

Sunrise, 7:23 a. m.; sunset, 5:52 p. m.

Leaning out the window of her car in front of Hotel Jayhawk the woman called:

"Young man. Oh, young man. Do you know anything about a Ford car? It seems to be stuck in the snow."

The young man assured her that he did know about Fords and offered to help. Seconds later, with the youth behind the wheel, the car was free.

"Why, how did you do that so quickly?" she asked.

"Easy, ma'am. I let off the emergency brake."
