

into the history. I've walked the same ground where my forefathers were enslaved in Kentucky, looked into the slave cabins where they live. With my interest and love of my history, I have truly touched their lives and I know that what they experienced was important and that their lives and history was not, is not, in vain. Now I am obsessed with our African American history and what a blessing!