

*“All those fall afternoons
were the same, but I never got used to them.*

The whole prairie was like the bush that burned with fire and was not consumed.

I felt erased.

I was entirely happy.”

—Willa Cather