The University of Kansas Medical Center Inspirational Choir, a 25-member culturally-mixed chorale, is made up of medical center employees and is directed by Elwanda Harvey and accompanied by Javaun Caldwell and Reggie Watkins.

The group performs ethnic folk and gospel music. Founded during a celebration of African American History Month, the Choir has subsequently performed throughout the greater Kansas City area and is now available for touring to other communities in Kansas. The Choir's music provides "a dose of medicine for the heart and soul."
