

1994 NATIONAL PRESERVATION CONFERENCE CULTURAL DIVERSITY SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATION
The Economics of Livable Communities: The Role of Historic Preservation
Boston, Massachusetts ♦ October 26-30, 1994

♦ The National Preservation Conference Scholarship Program provides financial assistance to individuals who might otherwise be unable to attend the 1994 National Preservation Conference. ♦ A primary objective of this scholarship program is to enable a group reflective of the diverse nature of American society, from a variety of cultural and economic backgrounds, to attend the conference and bring with them their various perspectives and experiences to contribute to and learn from other conference attendees. ♦ The National Trust is seeking applicants whose attendance at the conference would benefit their community or school, whose participation in conference sessions and events would contribute a valuable perspective to discussions and dialogue, and whose commitment to historic preservation would be strengthened as a result of participation in this meeting.
