Recreations Get Into Full Swing After Storms

Held back by the cloudy and rainy weather for the past week, the recreation center, directed by Dr. F. C. Allen and his class in community recreation, is this week, getting into full swing. The center, besides being open every evening except Saturday and Sunday from 7:30 until 9:30 includes tournaments in various sports.

Yesterday evening, students enjoyed a two-hour street dance, in the pavement roped-off in front of Bailey Chemical Laboratory, dancing to the music of Russ Chambers and his orchestra.

At 4:30 yesterday afternoon, six teams in the Big Six National League began their tournament on the intramural fields. The next set of games is scheduled for tomorrow at 4:30 p.m. on the intramural fields.

The University golf course, located on the hill overlooking the stadium is in good shape. Golfers have been enjoying the sport for several days. The course is a six-hole course, free to students with no fee charges. This spring it received new poles, flags and tee markers. The flags are red and blue. The greens have been refilled with new sand and the grass is being well taken care of. Interested golfers must sign up for the tournaments in the Physical Education office.

The tennis courts, north and east of the stadium are also in good condition and have been filled with players nearly every night. Tournament players for tennis are also required to sign up in the Physical Education office. Dell Davidson, in charge of athletic property keeps the courts in good playing condition.

The swimming club which announced twelve members last week have added three more members to the list; Mary Margaret Haas, Robert E. Cater, and Raymond O'Hara. "When twenty-five members are obtained a program and schedule will be announced," stated Evelyn Herriman, lifeguard.
