KANSAS CITY, MO.—Pressed and harried most of the second half, Iowa State's fine young basketball team played its way into the Big Seven tourney championship game Thursday night.

VOGT.

Never behind, although Colorado pulled to within one point three times in the last 3 minutes, the Cyclones finally managed a 55-52 victory.

Kansas ousted Missouri, 73-56, to gain a spot opposite Iowa State in tonight's title game.

The Cyclone victory came in dramatic fashion, with junior guard Gary Thompson twice delivering clutch performances and junior forward Chuck Vogt doing it once.

A sellout crowd of 10,000 was going slightly wacky near the end as the teams, neither of which has played for a title, got together after the half and played exciting basketball.

The climax action actually started with about 10 minutes to go when the Buffs started chipping away at a lead that had been as high as 11, and the game got real tense at 49-48, with less than 3 minutes to go.

Then Vogt, 6-foot 5-inch rebounder from Clinton, moved into the post and made a short shot. This was answered a minute later by Colorado reserve Gordon Johnson, who grabbed a loose ball and scored.

Starts Dribbling.

Thompson, who led all scorers with 18 in this defensive battle of switching assignments, then took over. He dribbled for about 35 seconds before he lost the ball. Colorado's George Hannah tried a hook shot which missed and Thompson grabbed the rebound and was off again.

There were 49 seconds left when Thompson started dribbling and 37 when Helzer, making a frantic body block, fouled the one-time Roland star.

If there was one thing the Cyclones had been having foul luck with it was free throws. Don Medsker, the 6-8 sophomore center, had scored seven in eight tries, and the rest of the team had totaled two for 12.

Gary had missed each of the four times he had stepped to the charity line. But he's a clutch player, and much depended upon the fact that he didn't miss now.

So he didn't. He made one. Then he made another. Colorado promptly took time out, planning what it could do about a 53-50 deficit in 37 seconds.

What it did was free Helzer under the basket. He got his layup, Iowa State got the ball and Thompson got back into action.

starts, the last three in a row.

Thompson and sophomore forward John Crawford were the guiding forces of the early play in which Iowa State was twice tied at 4-all, then took a 10-4 lead.

Crawford and Thompson each tallied eight of their points in the opening 20 minutes and Jumping John was vital under the defensive board, grabbing nine of Iowa State's 22 rebounds.

Colorado, with 6-7 Hannah and limber 6-5 Jim Ranglos, out-rebounded the Cyclones, 45-40, but the quick hands of Thompson, Lyle Frahm and Arnie Gaarde helped even the play.

Ranglos, leading Buff scorer with a 15-point average, was guarded by Vogt, and Vogt did a good job in holding him to 12 points.

That was high for the team from the mountains, earlier a victor over the State University of Iowa.

The biggest lead in the first half was 10 when Crawford put together two quick buckets. Thompson hit a jump shot to make it 39-28 in the second half, but then trouble set in.

Iowa State didn't get as many shots, but it used them better. The Cyclones made 21 of 56 for 37.5 per cent as compared to 19 of 61 for the Buffs.

Buff Gordon Johnson knocked the ball out of bounds with 10 seconds to go. It still belonged to Iowa State. Vogt passed it in, Thompson took it and was fouled again by Helzer.

Two More.

Again the sparkling 5-10 Thompson came through, making both tosses in what appeared to be a casual matter. If his heart wasn't in his throat, he was the lone exception in the hall.

There were eight seconds left and that wasn't enough for Colorado. The Cyclones, who hadn't lost to the defending league champion Buffs in three previous tournaments, still haven't.

The finish was so hectic that it completely overshadowed a good start by the Cyclones, who won their seventh game in eight kansas city, mo., dec. 28... " we played one of our worst games, ~~xxx~~ maybe our worst " said doyle parrack, okla oma's brown-haired young basketball coach, who ~~wasbx~~ colorado baptised rudely into ~~thexx~~ b his first big seven tournament tuesday , 88-69.

It's 'Off-the-Shoulder' Act in Big 7 Meet

Colorado's Bob Helzer has the ball roll off his shoulder as he fights with Iowa State's Don Medsker for a rebound in Thursday night's Big Seven tournament game at Kansas City. The Cyclones won, 55-52, in a tight defensive contest.

" we made so many mistakes in the second half moaned the new sooner boss, who had watched his club roll to a 41-34 intermission lead. " we lost our high ~~postman~~ leroy post-man , joe king (king plays high in the circle , bacher deep near the goal in a double-post) , and ~~xxxxxxxx~~ didn't run our single -post offense wd l at all. " that was the sooners'chief breakdown after they got away from the barrier swiftly. they led as much as 10 points in the first half and king shutout jim ranglos, the buffaloes' ~~xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx~~ leading scorer ~~xxxxxxxxx~~ through the first 13 minutes.

" we should have won ~~the~~ the game when we had that 10-point lead " , parrack reflected. they hit better the second half , but we let 'em by playing poorly. whe you don't run your offense right you made defensive mistakes . we did a poor job of folding back on their post-man.

" you might say we playedour game the first half ~~and~~ and theirs the second half. " parrack's apparaisal of the post defense was accurate. george hannah, the 6-7 senior who has suceeded burdette haldorson, collected 18 of his 28 points in the final 20 minutes. it was , by far, the biggest night of his career.

the oklahomans also wore themselves slick in the battle of the backboards and continually fell victim to cu's fast -break in the final half.

what killed the sooners' statistically was a 15-0 buffalo blast midway through the final stanza. cu overhauled ou at 49 with only seven minutes gone in last half , but jimmy peck and bacher collaborated in a rally that left the redshirts only 57-61 in arrears with 10 minutes gone. through the next 4:25, however, cu blazed into a 74-57 lead , this bulge twice worked to 20 before the sooners cut it to 19 at the end.

despite his 28 points, hannah had to yield scoring honors to bacher who canned 32. this placed the massive center into elite company. only five men in the previous nine years of the meet have reached 30 points. sherman norton, the old sooner forward, holds the record at 39. ku's clyde lovellette was twice over 30; maynard johnson, minnesota; dick knostman, kansas sstate, and haldorson, are the others.

oklahoma's first-round loss dropped it into the thursday afternoon consolation bracket against kansas state, a 71-79 loser to iowa state in tuesday's second game. this meeting thus wil renew the tourney's most prolific rivalry, since the teams have met six times previously. state is on the long end at 5-1 and hold a current win streak of 11 over the sooners. ou has not won since it scored a 49-46 upset over state's 1951 ncaa runners-up at norman.

kansas city, mo., dec. 29... most of oklahoma's focus as it moved against kansas state in a first-rpund conlation match which was to lead off thursday's big seven basketball card , was centered on pivot leory bacher.

when wednesday night's remaining firts-round returns were in , bacher's 32 in a losing cause against colorado tuesday, still stood as the meet's individual high through the first round. only two men, nebraska center rex ekwall, and missouri guard lionel smith , broke past 20 wednesday night as the tigers and kansas won as expected. ekwall nailed 25 in the 66-71 loss to missouri while smith was harvesting 22 as his backline mate, norm stewart sank to his seasonal low of 16.

seventeen was the high of ku's 75 -58 flogging of cornell with three men sharing that figure. jayhawk forwards gene elstun and bill brainard each hit that figure while cornell's milt kohan, another frontliner, was gleaning the same.

bacher thus hoes into the third day of tourney action with a four point lead of colorado center george hannah. the latter's 28 against oklahoma was his all-time collegiate high. the hippo-hipped sooner pivot is expected to enjoy another heavy harvest against k-state's 6-9 sophomore center, jack parr, who is not distinguished for his defense.

Those twin Sunflower basketball powers, Kansas and Kansas State , face the slimmest chance of reaching the Big Seven tournament finals since 1949 when the tenth annual dribble derby unwinds next week in Kansas City's Municipal auditorium.

The absence of one or the other of these clubs in the king row is almost unique in meet history. Only once, in the event's previous nine years, has there been a final not involving one of them. Missouri edged Oklahoma , 44-42, in the 1949 title round. Before and since , the Jayhawkers have moved into the home stretch five times; the Wildcats four . In 1952 they played for the crown with State rolling to a 93-87 victory, the highest winning score and highest combined score ever erected in the finals. Between them, the Sunflower tandem has cornered five championships, State in '47, '50 and '52; KU in '51 and '53.

Kansas lost , 46-49, to SMU in the '46 finals; and to Oklahoma, 49-52, in 1948, in addition to its 1952 loss to K-State. The Cats toppled, 71-89, to Missouri, last year.

State faces the stiffest opening test when the classic opens a four-day run Tuesday. It has drawn Iowa State, ranked only behind Missouri in pre-meet forecasting , in the nightcap of a two-game card which sends Oklahoma against Colorado's defending conference champions at 7:30 p.m.

The Cyclones come in with the best won-lost record, 5-1, of any tournament team. Most recent , and significant conquest, was an 87-76 win over unbeaten Vanderbilt previously Friday night in Ames.

Only a 62-65 defeat at the hands of Denver at Denver, seperates the Iowans from a perfect pre-meet slate.

Gary Thompson, their clever little guard, exploded the heaviest one-game shot of any tournament entry in that one with 40 points.

K-State has played in slightly rougher going to reach ~~mk~~ its 3-3 level. Its lost to Indiana's highly-ranked Hoosiers, 72-96, to Drake, 64-70.... the Bulldogs lost only by three to Indiana ... and to Houston, 79-86. The latter effort must be considered a good one since it was played in Houston. Both other ~~k~~ defeats also were on the road.

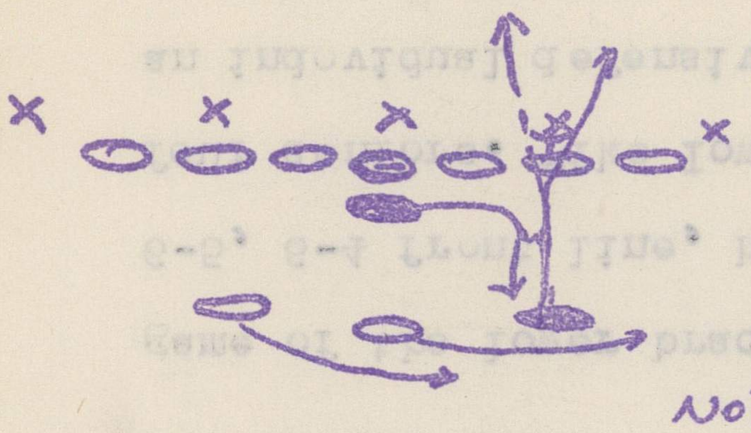

Some idea of why this is considered the best first-round match on the card can be found in the teams' comparative conquests of Texas Tech. The Wildcats beat the Raiders, 19 points (89-70) in Manhattan. The Cyclones clubbed them , ~~18~~ 20, (~~70~~ 72-52) at Ames.

Thompson ~~is x the x~~ comes in third ~~ranked~~ second on the pre-tourney scoring tables ~~at~~ with a 23.2 average. He trails only Missouri's Norm Stewart. K-State will present the meet's highest -scoring sophomore to date in Jack Parr, their 6-9 rookie center. He is travelling at 16.3, fifth on the individual tabulations.

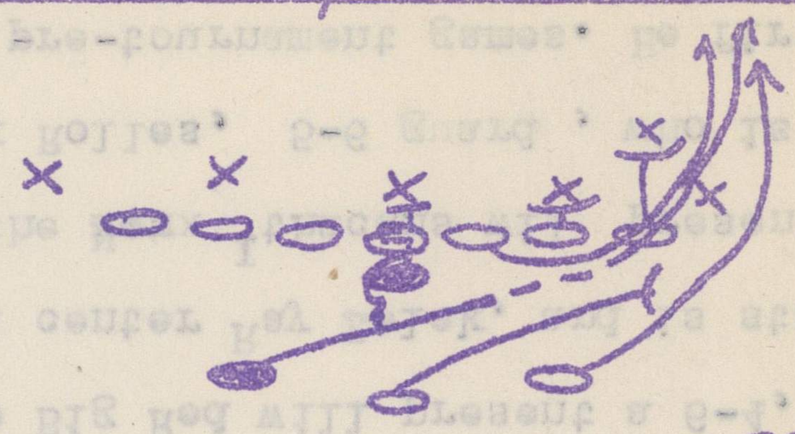

If The Wildcats can get by their openner they have a better than even chance of reaching the finals against the Colorado-Oklahoma winner.

this year's guest team, Cornell, is capable of upsetting Kansas in the final game of the lower bracket Wednesday. The Big Red will present a 6-4, ~~6-5~~ 6-5, 6-4 front line, hubbed by 220-pound center Ray Zelek, and is starting four seniors. Like Iowa State, ~~they x the x~~ the ~~New x~~ Ithacans will present an individual defensive problem in Chuck Rolles, 5-6 guard , who is averaging 23.0 through their ~~first~~ five pre-tournament games. kansas city,mo., dec. 30.... leroy bacher, a 220-pound center with a sore left foot, was poised to erect a new big seven tournament scoring record friday as he led oklahoma into a battle which will decide nothing but last place .

the sooners battle cornell,this year's guest team, in the leadoff game of a four-game day-night card which will close this tenth annual festival. bacher now stands at 56 points, six a 16-lehgth lead over the field, and only 26 digits removed from lyde lovellette's all-time single-meet high of 82 ~~established~~ which the old kansas mastadon established five years ago.

all bacher needs to do is match his tournament average of 28 in two games. lovellette averaged 27.3 in erecting the ~~existing~~ existing ceiling.

the massive sooner center will have no such height advantage as he did thursday against kansas state's 6-9 jack parr. he did well to collect 24 points to add to tuesday's opening salvo of 32 since parr blocked five of his shots and kept his arms up to discourage bacher's favorite hook, ~~the~~ leroy got seven of his nine goals by driving by for layups as ou absorbed its second frightful lacing, 64-86, in a first-round cosolation match.

against cornell bacher will face men of his own size in milt kohgan and ray zelek, both of who are his height, 6-5. however, the ithacans have been in a zone most of the time through their first two games, which means the wide sooner post-man, will tackle a new test.

cornell blew a 13-point halftime lead against nebraska to fall into the seventh-place battle, 69-70.

bacher ,s scoring feats are remarkable from several angles. fwrvwmx obviously he is not mx tall as modern centers go. furthermore he does not own good spring nor speed . hence he gets few tipins or recoveries around the goal. most of this can be traced to toe operations on each foot last soring. bacher still wears a protective covering on his left pedal. playing wvtwxsowx on sore feet he still averaged 18.6 points and 13 rebounds games last year when he became elâgible at the semester. furthermore his shooting percentage was .40.

he is shooting a phenominal 51-percent in this tournament with 22 for 43. he had a stunning stxxxxxg 13 for 19 effort against colorado.

" kansas state found out soon we couldn't score from the outside " reflected doyle parrack,who is taking a severe battering in his first big seven meet. " then they simply clogged the middle and we never had a chance after the first 10 minutes. xx aside from bacher and the high post-man, joe king, ou could collect only seven goals fr m the remainder of its lineup. and king again fouled out , this time with 10:57 remaining .

oklahoma led only twicx through the first three minute s when bacher hook twice to get it out of the barrier on top. state, which now has vanquished the sooners f six timesin seven tournament meetings, was on top , 43-23, at halftime and thrice mounted leads of 23 before wi nning by 22.

tournament notes : missouri fell victim to the jinx which has kept any all defending champions from repeating in losing its semfinal to kansas .... the tigers were facing a double whammy in that they never had beaten the jayhawkers in four previous tries on this court..... chuck rolles, 5-6 cornell foreward , closed the second round of play in second place on the individual scoring rolls with 40 points... . he collected 30 of them in the loss to nebraska and still trails bacher by 16 going into the final day session..... missouri's norm stewart collected only 14 points against kansas, but they were enough to vault him into eighth place among the tournament's all-time career scorers with 126. he came into the affair with 96 and has scored 30 in two tourney games... he climbed past med park, a former teammate, who held tenth place at 120, and colorado's bob jeangerard , who closed his career last year with 124.

kansas city,mo., dec. 31... oklahoma could salvage no better than seventh place in the tenth big seven basketball tournament which closed friday, but the sooners the meet's only two-award individual in center leroy bacher.

the massive el renoan not only won the affair's individual point scepter at 74, but that salvo earned him a slot on the first all-tournament team, selected by sportswriters and casters covering. his mates included norman stewart of missouri and gene elstun, kansas, forwards; dallas dobbs, kansas, and gary thompson, of iowa state's champions at guards. stewart actually is a forward , but the team was selected on the basis of most votes for any five men.

the second five lined up this way: john crawford, iowa state, and jim ranglos, colorado, forwards; rex ekwall, nebraska, center; chuck rolles, cornell, and pachin vicens, kansas state, guards.

bacher's 74 points was just one digit above rolles' final figure. the tiny cornell guard whisked through 33 in the seventh-place battle against 18 for bacher. however, the 220-pound sooner pivot canned six of his points in overtime to lift the redshirts to a 71-68 triumph.

the sooners had the ithicans dangling 60-55 with 4:25 from the wire only to see rolles pump his next-to-last basket two minutes later to fashion a 6-260 cornell edge. jimmy peck's 15-foot jumper tied the score with 3:00 remaining and cornell could not score out of a stall in two attempts.

bacher averaged 28 points through his first two games and needed only a point under that mean to establish a new single tournament record. however, it was a new tournament high for an oklahoma player, displacing lester lane's 67 of last year, and has been exceeded by only three men in the 10-year history of the classic, clyde lovellette, kansas, twice; maynard johnson, minnesota; and chuck duncan, io a state.

peck closed with 15 to tie for ninth on the fina l scoring tables almost at 45. this duplicated his 1954 finish when he score d 51 to gain tenth .

the win lifted doyle parrack's thin forces to 3-7 for the season. they'll open the 1956 conference season against kansas next saturday in lawrence.

iowa state benumbed the jayhawkers with an early rush which netted a 47-25 halftime lead which stood up for a 67-56 victory in the finals. it was the cyclones' first championship and the kansans' fourth disappointment in six trips to the finals.

missouri outlasted colorado, 82-79, for third place. kansas state whaled nebraska , 79-51, for fifth.

Anchored by an 87-76 conquest of previously-unbeaten Vanderbilt in its pre-tournament dress rehearsal, Iowa State is poised to shoot for its first Big Seven post-Chrsotmas crown this weeken when the tenth annual dribble derby opens a four-day run in Municipal auditorium.

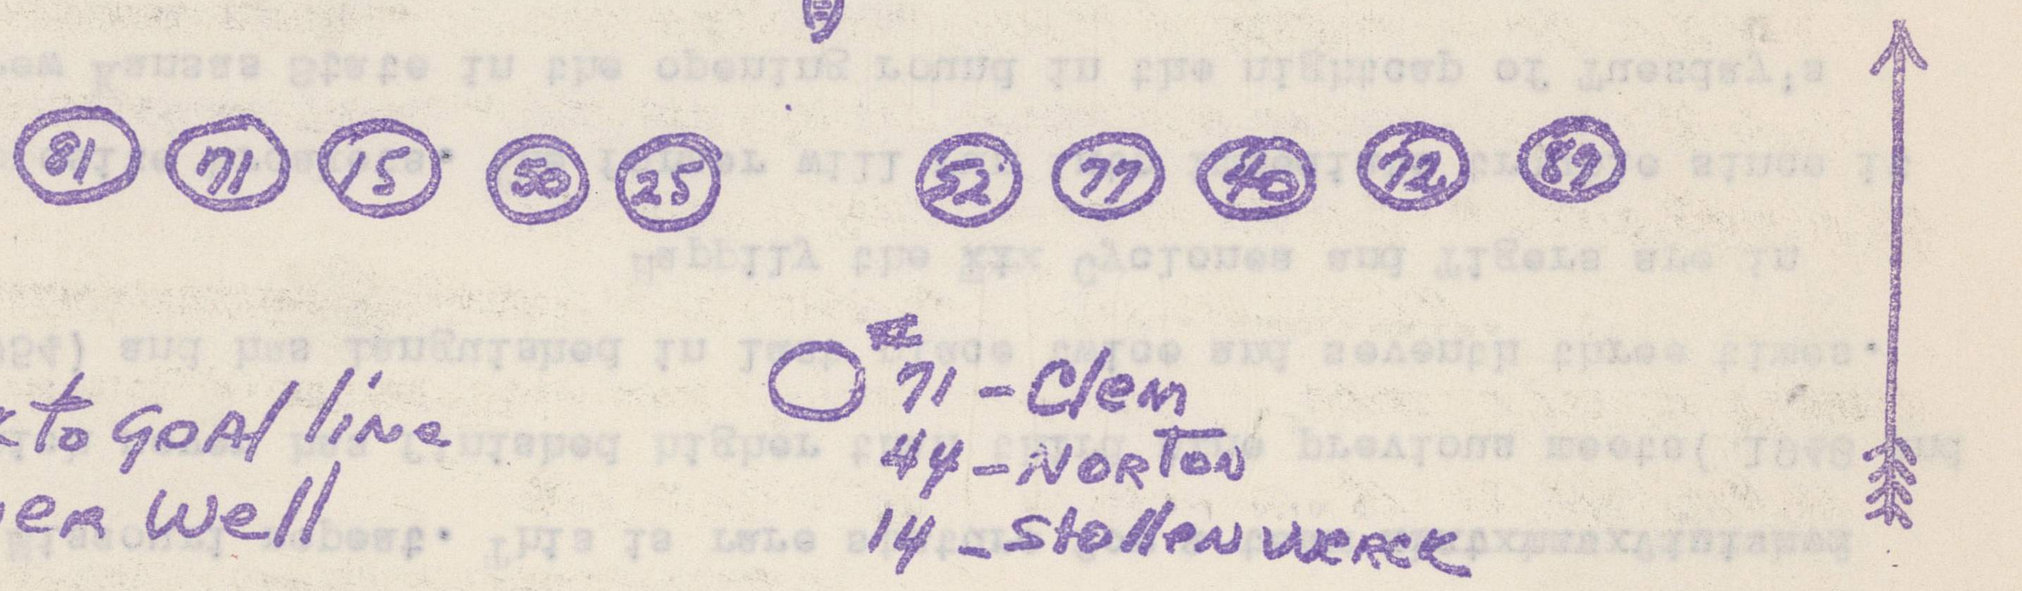

Thr Cyclones will tote the best record among tourney entries into the big arena yv5-1,

The Cyclones, playing their second season under Bill Strannigan , will come into the big arena with the best record among tournament teams at 5-1. Furthermore they own a 13.0-point-per -game spread, five-tenth wider than that of Missouri's defending tournement champions. Vanderbilt had won six straight before it invaded Ames Friday, was 8th- ranked in the latest AP poll and 19th on UP. Tulsa was undefeated in four games until running afoul of the Cyclones December 10, 50-62. Only three points, a 62-65 loss to Denver at Denver, Wednesday, separates the Iowans from a perfect slate.

They thus qualify as the highest barrier to a Missouri repeat. This is rare stature for a team which never has finished higher than third nine previous meets(1948 and 1954) and has languished in last place twice and seventh three times.

Happily the Cyclones and Tigers are in opposite brcakets. The former will run into immediate trouble since it drew Kansas State in the opening round in the nightcap of Tuesday's opening card. This should be the tighest battle of the first-round four game set . State , 3-3, has played a tougher preliminary slate, losing only 79-86 to well-regarded Houston, Thursday in Houston in its final pre- meet test.

Wednesday

7:30 p.m. Missouri vs, Nebraska

9:30 p.m. Kansas vs, Cornell

Iowa State is the meet's youngest team with only one senior figuring prominenlty and as many as three sophomores frequently starting. ~~Itxwikxvkmx~~ It will throw its sophomore center, 6-8 Don Medsker against K-State's 6-9 rookie, Jack Parr, in a duel which could pivot the outcome.

Some idea of how close this one will be can be found in scores against one common foe, Texas Tech . The ~~Gx~~ Cyclones whaled the Red Raiders 20 points ~~axx~~ (72-52) at Ames. The Wildcats beat them 19 ~~x~~ (89-70) at Manhattan.

If the Cardinal and Gold can get by K-State, it wil own ~~xn~~ a better than even chance to reach the finals. For it figures to handle either Colorado or Oklahomax in the semfinals.

Missouri remains a light favorite. The Tigers will bring in a 4-2 level , but only seven points are between them and an unblemished record. Purdue beat them, 62-58, at Lafayette and Indiana clipped them , 81-78, in Columbia. The Hoosiers are 18th-ranked on the latest AP tables. And MU whipped Illinois, No. 17, 74-73. This is tougher fare than the Cyclones have been chewing. And , to reach for Texas Tech again ~~x~~ for comparison, the Bengals slaughtered it by 32 , 92-60, in Columbia.

However, Missouri faces no easy path. In addition to the new Cyclones menace, the Tigers are bracketed with Kansas, a team it never has beaten in four tournament matches. This would be a semifinal match if the Tigers dispose of Nebraska and KU clears Cornell, this year's guest team. Furthermore, no defending champion ever has repeated in this event.

The latter engagement is surrounded by upset possibiliti as is the Oklahoma-Colorado face-off. Cornell is 3-2, a half-game behind Kansas. Bit it will field a front line of 6-4, 6-5, 6-4 and floor the meet's No. 3 pre-tourney scorer in Chuck Rolles, 5-6 guard. The Jayhawkers have huffed and puffed to write their 4-2 level owning only a 1.1 victory spreadper game victory spread despite their .600 reading.

Oklahoma upended Colorado in last year's opening round and is far closer in personnel to the Buffaloes this time. CU hasn't been the same since it absorbed a two-night 48-point shelling from BYU two weeks ago in Provo. It lost its pre-meet finale, 58-60, to Colorado A & M Friday. All this after a 60-57 win over Iowa 's defending Big Ten kings, tenth-ranked in the latest AP poll.

For the second time in three years, pivotmen, long the dominant scoring figures in this meet, may be shutout of the individual point championship. All three 20-point pre-tournament scorers are guards. Missouri's big captain, Norm Stewart. tops the list at 26.2 with Garp hompson, clever Iowa State junior, second at 23.2. Rolles is only two-tenth behind.

Thompson already exceeded two tournament records against Vanderbilt in collecting 40 points. This is one more than Sherman Norton 's single-game meet standard erected against Stanford in '51. Thompson 's 18 free throws is four beyond the tournament ceiling of now held jointly by Kansas State's Dick Knostman and Bill Braimard of Kansas.

INTRODUCTION

S.M.U.'s new modeled football machine has been playing a fast brand of ball. They are entirely different and improved over last year. This group of boys is practically the same team as last year but they are improved, well coached, and imbued with a new spirit to win. They are equally strong offensively and defensively and above average in both of these departments. Unlike most Woodard coached teams they are an excellent passing team. In order to win this game a supreme effort will be required.

Offensively they attack from a semi-split T which means that it is not entirely the type of split T that Oklahoma runs and it is not entirely the type of T that you run. Their hand-offs are slower, the quickest being the FB power play. Their Go plays are more than a slant than runs and their wide plays are comprised of sweeps, quick pitchouts, and options, and their wide stuff is made more practical with a threat of a running pass. In the games that we have seen them, we believe that their greatest strength is off tackle and wide. In their passing game they throw from the run and from the regular straight back, however, they have one action that should be born in mind and that is that they like to flood on side and throw a delayed pass into the weak side. They have several passers that are equally strong, one of whom is O'Brian #20 who is a left handed passer from the right half position. Norton #44 left half is improved over last year because he is no longer injured. Moore #25 fullback is exceptionally fast. Eidom #40 right half is fast and powerful and never gives up. Nutt #15 quarterback carries the ball along with his quarterback duties. Their line charge is above average, especially on the wedge plays. The guards - Clem #71 & Lafitte #62 are very fast and get into the interference without any trouble. They do not rely upon trapping and counters to any great degree although they try one every once in a while.

Their punting game bears a little bit of attention. So far they have kicked from the regular closed punt formation and from a quicker T formation punt when the ball is thrown between the legs of the quarterback. The punter, Norton #44 is exceptional, often times punts 60-80 yards in the air and places them well. Norton will run with the ball from punt formation and because of his great open field ability often will go it alone without interference to the weak side. It should be born in mind that he will run on 4th down.

Defensively they are a hustling team, gang tackling is predominant. Normally they defend with a 57 and a wide split between the center and tackles especially when Goss #77 is in the center defensive line. His exceptional size and speed puts a big burden on his ability to cover this rather long spread in an attempt to force plays to the outside where their defense is a little thicker. They adjust to the flanker and to the wide side of the field and I believe this adjustment can be taken advantage of. Pass defense is made stronger by their exceptional ability to rush the passer, but they seem to be weak to the offensive left, especially when you flank to the right. I believe that you can break up the middle and force them to come out of the 57 which will open up your offensive tackle position. A very quick strike will find you breaking through their line.

Rolles score 37 points against Brown while Stowart has games of 30, 31 and 36 on his ledger. All three pose threats to Clyde Lovellette's single-tournament mark of 82 which the old Kansas mastadon established in 1950.
