

Associated Press tables. And M. U. whipped Illinois, No. 17, 74-73. This is tougher fare than the Cyclones have been chewing. And to reach for Texas Tech again for comparison, the Bengals slaughtered the Raiders by thirty-two, 92-60, in Columbia.

However, Missouri faces no easy path. In addition to the new Cyclone menace, the Tigers are bracketed with Kansas, a team it never has beaten in four tournament matches. This would be a semifinal match if the Tigers dispose of Nebraska and K. U. clears Cornell, this year's guest team. Furthermore, no defending champion ever has repeated in this event.

Rolles a Cornell Star.

The latter engagement is surrounded by upset possibilities as is the Oklahoma-Colorado face-off. Cornell is 3-2, a half-game behind Kansas. But it will field a front line of 6-4, 6-5, 6-4 and floor the meet's No. 3 pre-tourney scorer in Chuck Rolles, 5-6 guard. Jawhawkers have huffed and puffed to write their 4-2 level, owning only 1.1 per game victory spread despite their .600 reading.
