

Cal in Mild Spurt.

Cal picked up a little as the second half started and got to a 43-47 position, but then a 10-point K-State burst while the Bears were collecting only two put the Manhattan crew well in front, 57-45, and from that time on the outcome was never in doubt.

K-State's biggest superiority was a 17-point advantage which was whittled slightly as the second half faded.

The shooting percentages were admirable. K-State notched a 40.9 percentage on twenty-seven hits out of sixty-six throws. California had 35.2 with twenty-five out of seventy-one. Both hit well up in the 40s in the first half.

A big assist to the 'Cat victory was offered by Jim Smith, who snared seventeen rebounds, tops for both clubs. The 'Cats scraped fifty-nine off the glass to fifty-two for California.

Kansas's Sophomores were up against a supercharged Iowa State band which for the first time since 1948 won a first-round victory in the tournament.

The skin-tight thriller went down to the wire with the Cyclones behind seven points early in the second quarter and six points back with seven minutes to go.

With about four minutes left, the Cyclones went ahead for the first time since early in the first half when Chuck Duncan hit a goal from underneath the bucket to make it 76-75 for the Cyclones. Then Duncan took a long pass downcourt and laid in another for a 78-75 lead and Kansas never again caught up.
