

their zone that State's Larry Wetter simply stood near the center line, dribbling until Oklahoma was willing to chase him.

Neither team shot consistently in the first half, which ended with Oklahoma ahead, 36-35. The game see-sawed early in the second half until Jerry Sandbulte fired the Cyclones into a 53-43 lead that held. This lead ruined Oklahoma's zone.

Peck, the fast boy who was put on Thompson, started the job with no fouls and wound up with the maximum five in 6 minutes.

Naturally, when the game hit the three-minute mark, Iowa State went into a stall, featuring Thompson and Frahm. Gary gave the 10,500 fans in Municipal Auditorium a show.

Folks around Roland, who used to think he was some stuff, would have found it delightful around here. Everybody seemed to think that. If there's one thing Gary can do it's to dribble.

Coach Bill Strannigan used only seven men, Iowa State's sixth victory in eight starts. Scoring was balanced except for Larry Wetter, who drew a blank. Generally he's one of the best.

A shifting man-to-man defense held both Lane and Peck to nine. Wetter and Sandbulte shared the job on Lane and Thompson did most of the work on Peck.
