

Keep Score Low at Start.

Missouri had trouble only in the first half as Nebraska's zone defense and some cold shooting on both sides kept the score low and about even. Missouri had the upper hand almost all the way but the biggest margin the Tigers could snare was the 6-point, 35-29 halftime edge. Norm Stewart's fourteen points in the first half paced M. U. while nineteen of Nebraska's twenty-nine in the twenty minutes were notched by Gary Renzelman.

Big Bob Reiter, M. U. center, started hitting his sweeping hook in the second half and, with the help of Med Park and Lionel Smith, pushed M. U. into a 52-37 lead in eight minutes of play in the second stanza. The biggest stretch came early when the Tigers hit ten points while Nebraska was going scoreless. From that deficit the Huskers never recovered.

The gap grew to twenty points later on and Coach Sparky Stalcup started sending in the reserves in profusion.

Stewart hit twenty-six points, most of them outside over the Nebraska zone, to lead the Tigers in their scoring. Renzelman's nineteen lead the Huskers.

Huskers Are Cold.

Nebraska battled a cold shooting streak throughout and coupled it with a good many errors. Missouri, too, had trouble locating the basket in the first half, hitting only 29.5 per cent, (Nebraska had 26.9) but the Tigers got better aim in the second half to hit over-all 32.9 percentage. The Huskers wound up with 31.4 per cent.

Stalcup used fourteen men in the game, all but one of those suited up. Coach Jerry Bush of Nebraska, once he saw the sad handwriting on the wall, also used his reserves, sending in thirteen men. It was Missouri's fifth victory in seven starts.

managed to run up a 5-point lead in the first half and then a 6-point bulge in the second half only to have the Sooners outhustle and outshoot them.

Colorado led by 37-35 at the half but Oklahoma tied as the second heat started. Then the lead changed hands ten times as the teams battled for supremacy. Oklahoma broke on top with a 52-48 lead. Then Colorado took over 55-54 as George Hannah, replacement for the Buffs' Burdette Haldorson, who sat out the last thirteen minutes of the second half nursing four personals, pumped in a tip shot. Four more times the lead changed sides but Colorado took a 65-59 lead with seven minutes to go.

But Peck and Lynn Hart powered the Sooners back into the game with a 7-point burst and Lane tied it at 68 with 3:48 to go.

Stall Too Long.

Then the Sooners, with 3:23 left, put it in the freezer. For three minutes they held, then took a time out with twenty-three seconds left. Again they stalled, then Lane drove for the bucket but he had waited too long, the buzzer sounded before he cut loose.

Lane darted in to take the tip-off starting the overtime. Peck drove but was called on steps. Colorado's Yardley shot and missed. Then came Lane's hit for a 70-68 Oklahoma lead. Manfield got one free throw for the Buffs. Oklahoma started a stall but was forced into a bad pass and Colorado took over, only to lose the ball out of bounds. Hart missed two free shots for Oklahoma, then Peck got one of two to make it 71-69. Jeangerard goaled to tie and then Peck's shot with three seconds left won it.

Jeangerard got twenty-three for Colorado, high for the team. Haldorson came in as the overtime started but fouled out in a minute and a half. He hit twen-
