

Huskies Tie It Up.

Kansas State erected a 46-39 lead as the third quarter started but later on Tripp, Parsons and Patnoe hit a flurry of points for Washington to make it a 49-all tie with four and a half minutes of the period to go. Big Jerry Jung came alive and with Prisock spearheaded a rally which pulled the Cats away to a 65-57 at the end of the quarter.

Kansas State got two 9-point leads in the final quarter and once had an 11-point gap before a late Washington rally combined with a full court press chopped it to its final margin, 81-75.

Dean Parsons, Washington center, hit eleven of eighteen field shots and two free throws for game scoring honors, twenty-four. Jesse Prisock had eight goals and three free ones for nineteen points, high for the Wildcats. Washington edged the winners in shot percentage, 38 per cent to 37.2 per cent. K-State had one more rebound than the Huskies, 44 to 43.

Cyclones Catch Up.

The Cyclones, hitting only 20.5 per cent of their field shots in the first half, got within a point twice in the third quarter, then caught the Buffs in the first minute of the fourth stanza when Charles Duncan laid one in and converted a free throw when he was fouled on the shot. That made it 53-all.

Tied again at 55, Iowa State once more fell behind as Burdette Haldorson hit two free throws. Then a 58-all tie was posted before Tom Lebuhn and Jerry Davis hit five points to give the Cyclones a lead of 63-58. Late fouls by Colorado protected the Iowa State lead.

The Cyclones hit better in the second half and wound up with an over-all 30.5 per cent, twenty-one hits in sixty-nine shots. Colorado cooled off in the second half and wound up with a 28.1 per cent average, eighteen out of sixty-four. Colorado, with a decided height advantage, snared thirty-eight rebounds to twenty-nine for Iowa State.
