

sherm didn't even know he'd broken the record until a reporter told him in the dressing room after the game. the angular ~~isvwasn'tvxvx#vx~~ senior wasn't even a regular last year although he rimmed 119 points in playing parts of all 24 games.

"it was, of course", our best game", smiled drake.

"the boys were much improved although they were ragged the second half."

the sooner bossman pointed out that eight of his 15-man ^{members} playing squad ~~isvplayingvx~~ are playing their first year of varsity basketball. basketball.

"we simply we're able to keep oklahoma from doing what it wanted to do", explained stanford bossman bob burnette.

kansas, ~~wasvfarvix~~ now unbeaten in eight games to date, and treading a string of 10 in a row counting two wins at the end of last season, was far less impressive than ou. the jayhawks whacked undersized colorado, 76-56, but played only eight minutes of good basketball. they roared into a 9-0 lead in the first four minutes and broke loose for 20 points in the final 4½.

tournament notes: sherm norton's 39-point cannade ~~is~~ dwarfed fine nights from other scorers including bob kenney, kansas, 21; clyde lovellette, kansas 23, and jim ramstead, stanford, 24.... ~~but~~ stanford coach bob burnette, wasn't entirely oblivious to norton's ~~potential~~ potentialities... he had heard about him from his ~~is~~ (norton's) brother, walter who spent two days at palo alto last spring looking over the campus ... the latter now is a freshman at yale.... stanford's defeat marked the second time in six tournaments that the guest team has fallen in the first round of play. harvard was the other victim in 1948.
