

My interest in physical education was undoubtedly founded on whole-hearted participation in athletics while still in high school. Following an extensive sports program in college my interest has only been increased with the years in contact with this phase of the work of the physical educator.

May I say that I hope this letter has given you some insight as to my character, personality, and experience. I will be only too glad to supply you with whatever information regarding myself I may have failed to mention. Should you be interested in learning something of my ability as a student those records, together with my recommendations, are on file in the Appointment Office at Stanford University.

I am enclosing a stamped envelope for your convenience in seeking information about me. Hoping that I may receive your consideration for this position, I am

Sincerely yours,

Clyde Voorhees
