

January 22, 1938.

Mr. Alfred G. Hill, Publisher,
Wyoming State Tribune,
Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Dear Alfred:

Gee, your boy Yarnell certainly turned on the heat! I have written him and thanked him for his very generous article. Of course, I know the fellow who really sold the idea, and that was A.G.H. And, too, I want to make my nod to you and my thanks.

It is not often that a fellow can get another man to write an article like that, so I am wondering if you would send me 6 or 8 copies so that I may have them for this reason and that. If you do not have that many, of course just send me a few, and I will be glad to remit for postage and the price of the copies.

I want to send one to Mr. Curtis W. McGraw, vice president of the McGraw-Hill Book Company; but perhaps you have already sent him one. At any rate, I do not want him to miss out. I want him to see that he really sent that book out to a fellow who rings the bell in return, and when he rings it, it is a real gong.

Thanks, Alfred, you are a swell fellow.

My kindest regards to your good family and yourself.

Sincerely yours,
