Dear Friend:

May I suggest that you give "Phog" Allen's new basketball book an item in an early issue of the Kansas Athlete. In our school we have been so enthused that we bought four copies in spite of the price.

The first day the books were in the library the librarian reported that they had been worth what they cost because one of her most troublesome boy customers had been reading in one of them and had kept quiet. Our head English teacher has approved the book for use in English classes.

Besides containing plenty of good technical information, with numerous drawings and pictures, the book abounds in good psychology. Especially to be commended to the high school student are the eight game short stories.

We are very enthusiastic about the book and think that the teachers and students of any high school should be.

We have been sorry to hear of your illness and trust that this letter will find you fully recovered.

Cordially yours,

Neal M. Wherry
