

Basket ball is <sup>now</sup> an Olympic sport ~~because~~ <sup>because</sup> of the surge of youthful interest in this game and not because it is in a class with "pograms and bull fighting". The Olympics have revived and kept alive track sports, so shall they further develop the growing popularity of basket ball among the nations of the world.

In ~~the~~ ~~the~~ section ~~of~~ of your article you elaborate upon the deflation aspect of "Bulletin No. 29" of the Carnegie Foundation Report.

Aside from causing <sup>an initial flurry among</sup> the athletes and academic faculty as well as providing an opportunity for sports editors to elaborate pro and con <sup>regarding</sup> the ~~or~~ alleged over emphasis on football nothing ~~to~~ constructive to date has been accomplished by the publication of this famous bulletin. It did not act as a deflationary instrument on sport nor <sup>is</sup> it of any potent ~~or dignifying~~ <sup>constructive</sup> force at present.
