

Robin Hood Will Fill ⁷⁻²⁻⁴⁰ These Woods

Along with the recreational program which is carried on each day for the benefit of summer school students and towns people, there is much activity and interest in archery.

Each evening instruction is offered to enthusiasts of this sport, while the afternoon is reserved for children. Anyone interested in making bows should report at this time for instruction.

This event has been taken over by Ernest (Robin Hood) Davis, who has come to us from the "Sherwood Forest" of Indiana to carry on his studies in the Mount Oread woods of Kansas. He does not stop with splitting arrows, but believes it is more of an expert's game if an archer splits tooth picks instead.

A new angle of interest was added to the sport last Sunday. A group of students carried on a hunting and roving expedition through the woods. Anyone who would care to join this group should inquire from "Robin Hood" Davis at the recreational program in the evening.

According to reports from the athletic office, there are more than fifty people who take advantage of the range each evening. This is a very inexpensive sport, and one in which a great number of people can take part. The wood for making bows is cheap and all tools are furnished by the athletic office.

If there is a large enough demand the pool may be opened at night, Doctor Allen said.
