

KANSAS COLOR PRESS MACHINE COMPANY "E" AWARD

Tuesday, 16 November 1943

8:00 to 8:30 p.m.

Lawrence, Kansas

*may we all arise and sing
one stanza of America.*

I. DR. ALLEN:

To begin this impressive presentation of the Army-Navy "E" Award ~~I would like for all of you to rise and join me in singing one stanza of America.~~ with

MUSIC:

America

II. DR. ALLEN:

Ladies and Gentlemen, we have gathered here tonight to witness the presentation of an Army-Navy "E" Award. This is the highest award an American company can attain. The Kansas Color Press Machine Company, Lawrence, Kansas, is the first company in this area to be recommended by the Army Air Forces for this coveted award. The products of this firm are probably in use in every war theatre in the world. (Fill in brief remarks concerning company, employees, and significance of award.)

Team Work Initiative, Ingenuity and a dogged determination to be a potent factor in Victory

III. DR. ALLEN:

*is the most plausible answer
for this outstanding achievement*

now It is my pleasure now to introduce to you Major Richard A. Magee, who is representing the United States Army -- MAJOR MAGEE.

IV. MAJOR MAGEE

.....

V.

William T. Nichols and labor representative step forward, unfold the flag, and hold it so the spectators can see it. Then it is handed to the waiting color guard, who will hoist it on the flag pole while accompanied by band music.

VI.

A. DR. ALLEN:

Ladies and Gentlemen, at this time may I ~~I want to~~ present to you Mr. William T. Nichols, who is one of the joint owners of the Kansas Color Press Machine Company.

B. WILLIAM T. NICHOLS

Dr. Allen, Distinguished Guests, Fellow Workers, Ladies, and Gentlemen: At this time I want to thank the employees of our company with whom I have worked and who have worked with and for me and have made it possible to win this award

(Fill in acceptance speech.)
Speaking for myself and those whom I represent, I want to say to our employees, "Congratulations, to you, on winning this award."

*Thanks for Lord of Lords
after Star Spangled Banner*